DEATH NOTE BARED, CABLE HELD

Council to Seek Renewal of Present Gas Rate

SOLONS WARN THEY'LL FIGHT ANY INCREASE

Instruct Utilities Committee at Informal Session to Put Plan Up to Gas Company.

7 OF 9 MEMBERS PRESENT

Stand Seen as Compromise in View of Group's Proposal for Rate Reduction.

Seemingly convinced that the city has no chance to obtain a reduction in gas rates, councilmen, meeting as a committee of the whole last night, authorized the utilities committee to seek approval of the Ohio Fuel Gas company of renewal of the present rate ordinance.

Seven of council's nine members were present, only George C. Kyle, Third ward, and James E. Crum, at large, being absent.

Renewal Satisfactory.

The seven councilmen and Mayor Claude M. Hunter agreed that renewal of the present contract would be satisfactory, but sounded a warning that they would flatly oppose any increase in rates.

The stand of council represented a virtual compromise proposal.

The utilities committee had proposed a rate contract that would make the bill of the 5,000-foot consumer $3, as compared with the present rate of $3.25, while the gas company's proposal called for an increase to $3.70.

Submits 3 Proposals.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, outlined for fellow council members last night the various rates paid by other Ohio cities and laid before the group the three proposals that the committee had been working on.

The councilmen, however, flatly rejected the gas company's offer made a week ago calling for a nine-cent increase per thousand over the present rate for the 5,000-foot consumer, and agreed that they would not approve any rate higher than the 65 cents per thousand now being paid.

Fifth Ward Councilman Fred Miller voiced his disapproval of

TOLL UP TO 93

Additional Bodies Found in English Mine Disaster.

CHESTERFIELD, Eng.—(INS)—Death toll in the Markham colliery mine explosion disaster today was reported to have risen to 93 following discovery of additional bodies of victims.

An earlier official announcement had placed the number of dead at 78. Some of the 49 injured miners, over-taxing the local hospitals, were expected to succumb to their burns and increase the death toll still further.

An official investigation was under way to determine cause of the two explosions which sent swirling flames and noxious gases through the underground chambers and passages of the mine.

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Mrs. Emma McAdoo, colored, was ordered into the state excise officers' automobile for a trip to jail on charges of illegal possession of liquor.

"I can't get in," she protested.

She was right—she weighs 450 pounds.

FIVE-WAY LIGHT AT DANGER SPOT

New Signal to Be Erected at Park Avenue Intersection With Three Streets.

A new five-way traffic signal is to be installed at the Park avenue west-Marion-Bowman-Sturges intersection, for many years a danger spot for traffic.

Announcement to this effect was made today by Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert. The signal has been purchased and has arrived in Mansfield, but the installation may take as long as a month, Styert said.

Before the new signal can be installed, the Ohio Public Service company will have to install steel poles at the corner, City Electrician Ernest Adams said.

The present signal at that intersection will be placed at the intersection of Wayne street and East Fifth.

Styert said the need for a different type of traffic signal at the Park-Marion-Bowman-Sturges intersection had been recognized for a long time, and voiced the belief that the installation would give traffic, always heavy there, "a chance."

"The situation has been especially bad during rush hours," Styert said, "automobiles attempting to make turns off Park avenue, or entering from any of the intersecting streets, have been delayed by the through traffic on Park avenue west. We hope the installation of the new signal will do away with a great deal of this unnecessary delay."

The cost of the installation of the new signal and the transfer of the old one will be about $600, Styert estimated.

FASCISTS START MAJOR DRIVE

Fair Weather Returns Franco Gives 'Go Ahead' Signal.

HENDAYE France (At the Spanish Frontier)—(AP)—The return of good weather to the Spanish civil war's eastern front today signalled the beginning of a general insurgent offensive against government lines which have held firmly through two and a half weeks of rain.

An insurgent fleet mapped government positions for the new drive and bombers dropped tons of explosives on government militiamen to soften resistance.

FIRST DAY OF FUND CAMPAIGN NETS $11,980

Initial Report Takes Drive More Than Fifth of Way to $53,950 Goal.

APPROACHES '37 FIGURE

Industrial Division Turns in $8,598; Chairman Hughes Spurs Workers on.

Workers in the 1938 Community Fund drive rang the bell today with $11,980 for the first day's work, as reports were made at the first noon report meeting of workers at First M. E. church.

The initial report represents slightly more than 22 per cent of the total $53,950 to be raised this year, and compares favorably with the first day's report of last year, which was $14,000.

Attorney Carl H. Henkel, speaker at today's meeting, pointed out that this year's figure for the first day's work is only $2,000 less than last year, which represented one of the most prosperous years of the present decade. Henkel is chairman of the special gifts committee.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Mansfield will contribute all that is asked of it this year," Henkel told the group, "for lean years make individuals more considerate of their fellow beings. The speaker at the opening meetng Monday night (Dr. Frank Baker, Cleveland) gave us a fine and inspiring slogan—'live and help live'—and I feel that we will live up to that as individuals and as a community.

"The spirit manifested by workers this year seems to be inspired rather than depressed by conditions, and I think they will find that spirit reflected in citizens everywhere."

Industrial Division Leads.

The largest amount turned in today came from the industrial division, of which H. W. Arlin is chairman. He reported $8,598 from industry, which is approximately the same figure reported by the same division the first day last year.

The second highest report was

HOPES FADING

Girl, 4, Lost 3 Days, Believed to Have Died in Woods.

BRADFORD —(AP)— Mud-spattered and shivering men who have combed dense woods in this area for three days seeking little Marjory West expressed doubt today that the child, if found, could be alive.

Blue-eyed and titian-haired, the four-year-old Marjory—object of one of the most intensive searches ever staged in this densely forested northern Pennsylvania district, but recently recovered from pneumonia.

She wandered away from a family picnic Sunday to gather flowers in the woods. Bloodhounds brought here by New York State police who joined the hundreds of men and boys in the hunt, picked up the trail yesterday but lost it.

Detective's 8-Year Hunt For Slayer Ends, Suspect Jailed

An eight-year search by Detective Lee J. Remy for a "man with a scar" accused of murder today had been at least partially rewarded.

The man said to travel under the alias of "Boll Weevil," was under arrest and held without bail in the Mansfield police station, and had been identified as the slayer of a man in Chattanooga, Tenn., in 1929. The identification was made by the slain man's brother, police revealed today.

The soiled and time-worn letter from the sheriff of Hamilton county, Tennessee, that Remy has been carrying in his inner pocket for the past eight years, asked that he search for a man under indictment there for murder.

The letter said that the man, 35 years old and colored, had tell-tale scars on his face, which they described.

The murder suspect was identified yesterday by a brother of the victim who came here from Columbus at the request of police.

He picked the man out of a line-up with four other colored men at the police station.

"That's him, that's the man who killed my brother—the one with the dark suit and the cigaret," the Columbus man said without hesitation.

Later in the detective bureau, he related how the suspect had shot his brother during an argument over a girl at a house party in Chattanooga, and how the man disappeared.

Last January police were told that a man seen in Mansfield was

Probe Renewed in Baffling Parsons Mystery

Mystery of what happened to Mrs. Alice M. Parsons, Stony Brook, L. I., socialite wife of William H. Parsons, who disappeared 11 months ago and has not been heard from since, was revived with a new intensive investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. J. Earle Connally, G-man in charge of the case, is mapping out a new search for the missing heiress. At the time of Mrs. Parson's disappearance, an abduction note demanding $25,000 was found. Meanwhile, Parsons lives in seclusion near Salinas, Cal., where his long-time housekeeper, Anna Kupryanova, said to be his adopted daughter, also took up residence with her 13-year-old daughter. Reports that Parsons and Mrs. Kupryanova may marry have been heard in New York.

New Clues Spur Hopes To Learn Heiress' Fate Soon

Murder Evidence Waits Pending Finding of Body of Socialite—Paper Used for Ransom Note Found.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Murdered, kidnaped or just missing? The answer to that open question concerning Mrs. Alice M. Parsons appeared nearer today than at any time since June 9, 1937, when the Long Island heiress disappeared in the course of a routine day at the Parsons squab farm.

Today there was even a hint that if the authorities can produce Mrs. Parsons' body they can produce a murder suspect and build a strong case of circumstantial evidence.

Solution Plainer.

Bit by bit as the old and new facts and theories are fitted together in the manner of a jigsaw puzzle, the solution becomes plainer but there are still missing pieces of information and bits which must eventually be altered or discarded.

Regarded as one of the strongest links between suspect and supposed murder is the reported finding of three sheets of the cheap white paper on which a ransom note was written and left in the Parsons automobile.

The automobile had no connection with the disappearance of Mrs. Parsons who was believed to have left the farm with a man and woman in their car, yet the ransom note was found many hours

'HOT MIX' SUIT HEARING OPENS

Judge Hears Motion To Stop Payments To Contractors.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Hearing on a motion for an order to restrain State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson from paying contractors for "hot mix" road projects until a taxpayer's suit is settled was opened in Judge Henry Scarlett's courtroom today.

The original suit was brought by Mrs. Agnes B. Dinckinson, Columbus attorney, who charged violation of the Valentine anti-trust laws by the Hot Mix Bituminous Industry of Ohio, Inc., as the result of revelations by the recent Ohio senate graft investigating committee.

The suit asked recovering of $2,000,000 to $5,000,000, allegedly due the state because of excessive "hot mix" prices.

FRANCE JOINS IN ALIEN OUSTER

Unites With U. S. and Britain in Drive to Halt Activity of Espionage Agents.

(By International News Service)

PARIS — France today joined the United States and Great Britain in a sweeping cleanup of undesirable aliens obviously aimed at the widespread international espionage rings which have gained a foothold in Europe and America during the last few months.

More than 100,000 foreigners will be expelled from France before the end of this month, it was learned. While the majority are innocent of anything more serious than passport irregularities, the government is confident its dragnet will bring in many major or minor figures engaged in espionage work.

International News Service dispatches from London yesterday and today disclosed that the British government is undertaking a similar investigation of foreigners living in England following discovery that many German girls are working as servants in officers homes near the important military barracks at Aldershot.

Acting under direct orders from Premier Edouard Daladier, police and operatives of the Surete Nationale began the long and difficult task of checking the credentials of more than 1,000,000 refugees, many of whom are suspected of political and espionage activities.

County Fails To Keep Pace In WPA Jobs

State Leads Nation In Number on Rolls But Richland Lags.

Ohio is leading the entire nation in WPA employment with an all-time peak of 233,500 working on government projects, but Mansfield and Richland county are lagging far behind the state's pace.

Figures released from Columbus today showed that of 20 counties in the Sixth Ohio district, only Richland and Knox have fewer men at work on WPA projects than are eligible for such jobs.

District Director J. L. Kelly said the reason was that subdivisions in the county had failed to make projects available.

His figures showed that 595 men are now employed on WPA projects in the county, while 712 others eligible for employment are idle because there are no projects on which they can be put to work.

Peak In 1935 Was 700.

Richland county's peak employment on such projects was about 700, according to Earl Nist, city relief director. This figure was reached in 1935. Nist said Richland county had about half as many WPA workers employed at present as other counties of similar size. He added, however, that an application is now awaiting approval in Washington that will put 200 more men to work clearing ditches and dredging streams in the county.

The state figures show that Ohio tops even Pennsylvania and New York in the number of WPA employes, state WPA headquarters reported. Pennsylvania, with a population 3,000,000 in excess of the Buckeye state, has 229,941 on its WPA rolls. New York has 212,341, Illinois 199,100, and Michigan 136,191.

Asked for an explanation of Ohio's high rating, Otis Garber, deputy state WPA administrator, said employment quotas were based on the needs among unemployed, and that conditions lead officials to believe the need was greatest in Ohio.

The city of Mansfield now has about 330 men at work on WPA sidewalk, sewer and curb replacements. It also is preparing to start the $75,000 Woodland water line project, which will employ about 200, and the parks rehabilitation program, which will employ 80.

Both of these projects await the sale of bonds to finance them.

City to Vote on Non-Partisan Park Commission Plan in Fall

Mansfielders will be asked to vote in the November election on the creation of a non-partisan park commission

Action to put the question on the fall ballot, in the form of an initiative petition, was approved last night at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, Paul W. Williams secretary-manager, announced today.

The board's action was taken on the recommendation of the chamber's park and city beautification committee, which proposed creation of a commission as the best means of bringing about immediate rehabilitation of Mansfield's park system.

Although machinery has not yet been set up, petitions will be put in circulation immediately, Williams said, under direction of the park committee, which is headed by G. Victor Sowers, chairman.

It will be necessary to obtain the signatures of about 1,000 qualified voters to put the question on the November ballot.

Should the plan be approved by the voters, the mayor would be required, under state statutes, to appoint a three-member commission, for terms of one, two, and three years.

Such a commission, Williams explained, would have complete

$200 PAID TO DO 'JOB'

Note, Written Before Suicide Death, Says Clevelanders Fired Shotgun Charge.

BULLETIN

CANTON —(U.P.)— Dueber S. Cable, well-to-do Canton contractor, today denied the posthumous charge of Miss Theresa Ludwig, his erstwhile 46-year-old paramour, that he hired Cleveland assassins to kill his wife, Rose, on March 11, 1937.

(By International News Service)

CANTON—Dueber S. Cable, well-to-do contractor and husband of the victim in the sensational Cable murder case, was jailed today for questioning.

A short time later, Prosecutor A. C. L. Barthelmeh revealed the contents of a letter written by Mrs. Theresa Ludwig, Cable's paramour for seven years, before she ended her life Monday.

In her letter, Mrs. Ludwig charged that the murder of Cable's wife, Rose, was committed by "hired killers from Cleveland, who were paid $200 to do the job," Barthelmeh said.

Written to Attorney.

Mrs. Ludwig's letter was written to William B. Quinn, attorney who represented her when she and Cable were held for questioning after the slaying 14 months ago.

Barthelmeh declined to comment on contents of the letter.

Police Chief Ira Manderbaugh said Cable had been questioned during the night, and would be subjected to further questioning today.

Police also questioned a woman friend of Mrs. Ludwig in Canton but she was not held.

Private funeral service were to be held at an unannounced time today for Mrs. Ludwig in Conneaut, O., where she ended her life in the garage of her sister's home by inhaling fumes from the car exhaust.

Colan Baby Case Leads Illinois to Plan New Law

CHICAGO—(INS)—Future babies in Illinois may be saved from the tragic fate of total blindness or death that still threatened five weeks old Helaine Judith Colan today.

A new law was being drawn today requiring exhaustive examination of the eyes at birth to determine the presence of glioma of the retina, the rare but dreadful malady that has already required the removal of one of Helaine's eyes.

Present statutes require the bathing of the eyes in an antiseptic at birth, but it was hoped that closer scrutiny would reveal more serious disorders with a chance for prompt curative treatment.

As a staff of doctors studied the diseased tissue from Helaine's eyes to discover if the removal of her other eye will be necessary, the tiny girl appeared to be recovering steadily from the original operation.

Japs Defy Warning, U. S., British Ships Race to Amoy

RUSH AID TO AMERICANS AT ISLAND PORT

Japanese Bombers Wreck City, Part of It in Flames; Ship Hit by Chinese Raiders.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI—United States and British warships raced toward Amoy today as Japanese navy authorities threatened to ignore foreign rights in their attack on the island port.

The American gunboat Asheville arrived at Amoy today, after an all night race up the coast, and was prepared to evacuate the 38 Americans if necessary. The cruiser Marblehead was known to be on its way, the destroyer Edsall was reported steaming at forced draught down from Tsingtao, and reports from Manila indicated that a destroyer flotilla might be ordered from there.

Fighting of ferocious nature was reported proceeding at Amoy. Tokyo reported that parts of the city were in flames after a merciless Japanese airplane bombardment.

Bomb Jap Fleet.

Reliable sources at Hong Kong advised the United Press that 12 Chinese war planes, in a retaliatory raid, bombarded the Japanese fleet off Sancho island, near Hong Kong, seriously damaged one destroyer and shot down one Japanese plane.

Japanese naval authorities announced officially, a United Press Hong Kong dispatch reported, that foreign residents of Amoy had been notified that unless strict neutrality was observed foreign rights would not be respected.

The British destroyer Diana was at Amoy, and the destroyer Dianty was enroute up the coast from Swatow, to aid the 189 Britons reported in danger.

Reports from Amoy were conflicting and indicated only that savage fighting was in progress.

Japanese navy men landed yesterday on the eastern part of Amoy island, intending to reduce the strong Chinese fortifications there, establish a new base for themselves on the coast between Shanghai and Hong Kong, and prevent the landing of shipments of war materials from foreign countries.

A strong landing party was sent ashore and Japanese airplanes dropped more than 200 bombs on the city and vicinity. Fires were started and still were burning today, reports said.

School Patrols Join In Annual Picnic on May 24

School boy patrolmen from Mansfield, Shelby, and all of the Richland county townships will be rewarded for their past year's work with an annual picnic at South park May 24, according to Frend C. Boals, traffic patrol supervisor.

Patrol boys from all the schools in the county where this protection to other school children is maintained will assemble at the park at 4 p. m. Boals said.

The annual ball game, feature of the gathering, between Mansfield and Shelby patrols will be played at that hour. The program will also include various field events which have been arranged and will be supervised by Floyd Dent, Boy Scout executive.

Awards of merit will be presented to the outstanding patrol boy from each school. The awards will be made by Police Chief Meade K. Bates on the ability of the boy's patrol work. Winners have been selected by the vote of fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in the schools where the patrols operate, Boals explained.

A picnic supper, provided by the Richland County Automobile club which sponsors the patrol, is in charge of Jack Berger, of the auto club.

If they ever take a poll of instructors at Senior high school on their choice of recreation, it is more than likely that it will reveal that fishermen are in the majority. A frequent visitor to neighborhood lakes reports that one whole corner of Long lake on the other side of Hayesville was taken over by fishing enthusiasts of the school faculty over the week-end, among them being H. Gold fish in the fountain in Central park were in hiding today, but it wasn't because of the chilly weather. A cloud of sediment in the water obscured the colony of fish from the usual group of on-lookers after park employes placed mud and salt in the pool to sterilize it. They explained that crystal clear water may look pretty, but too much of it causes slime to form on the fish and makes them ill. The mud and salt, which actually "cleans" the water, will be drained from the pool in a few days.

THREATENS SUIT IN DAVEY PROBE

Tax Attorney Tells Duffy He Might Sue in Challenge of 'Assessment' Inquiry.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy's grand jury investigation of assessments on state employes' salaries to finance Gov. Martin L. Davey's campaign was threatened with a legal attack today by the governor's forces.

Daniel S. Earhart, attorney in the tax commission, against whom an affidavit of solicitation of a civil service worker was filed, precipitating the inquiry, challenged legality of the grand jury in a letter to Duffy.

He indicated he might file a taxpayer's suit to recover costs incurred during the session of the grand jury, holding that it is without authority. He based his contention upon a statute construed to mean that a grand jury is without power once the court term during which it was impanelled ends.

Earhart, formerly a congressman for a six week's term and a staunch administration worker, also attacked the attorney general for failure to call him before the jury to testify as he requested some time ago.

His letter coincided with reports that the grand jury might turn its investigation to reports that the employment assessment plan was developed during a meeting of department and division executives with the governor at the executive mansion some weeks ago.

SELASSIE SPEEDS TO GENEVA TO MAKE LAST FIGHT FOR ETHIOPIA

(By United Press)

GENEVA—Emperor Haile Selassie sped across Europe today to make a final, despairing fight for his Ethiopian empire as league council members met to hear a Chilean threat to leave the league unless the penal clause of its covenant were dropped.

Assured after telephonic negotiation that the council would hear him, Haile Selassie left London for Geneva last night attended by Dr. Ajar Warqneh Martin, Ethiopian minister to London; Blatten Getta (master of the wise men) Herouy, his former foreign minister, and a private secretary.

The council waited to hear him tomorrow in a speech opposing the British-French plan to re-organize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. The councillors, and Haile Selassie himself, knew that the plea would be vain because Britain and France were determined to recognize the conquest as part of their plan for friendship with Italy. Nevertheless, the emperor elected to fight to the last.

Switzerland's demand that the league, despite its covenant, recognize her as completely neutral in all international disputes, was the first item on the council's program today. Next was the Chilean threat to leave the league.

This afternoon's business was to hear Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, Spanish loyalist foreign minister, demand that the powers end what he called the "fiction" of the Spanish non-intervention agreement—an agreement, the loyalists assert, which has served only to deprive the legally constituted government of Spain of arms while Italy and Germany have supplied the rebels in the civil war.

JAIL REVOLTERS AFTER FIGHTING IN PALACE AREA

Greenshirts, Banned by Decree of President, Fail in Try to Seize Control.

(By Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL—A Fascist revolt against the totalitarian government of President Getulio Vargas was crushed quickly today after fighting in streets of the capital and unsuccessful attempts to seize government buildings.

The rebellion was started by the Integralist action (Greenshirt) organization, outlawed by President Vargas after he grasped authoritarian control of Brazil in the coup of 1937.

Assaults were made on the Guanabara presidential palace and other government buildings but the only one the revolutionaries succeeded in occupying was the marine ministry. Government militia surrounded them there and forced a quick surrender.

Government In Control.

At daybreak, Chief of Police Filinto Mueller, speaking for the Vargas government, broadcast a communique asserting the government "absolutely dominated" the situation and the revolt had been suppressed.

Disorders lasting three and one-half hours raged through the heart of the city before the government gained mastery.

The uprising was so closely concentrated in the heart of the capital that suburbs and outlying districts were unaware of it until disorders had been ended and Mueller broadcast his reports.

Traffic for a time was paralyzed in certain streets leading to Guanabara palace and the ministry of war but gradually reopened to normal movement.

The revolutionaries, whose number was not estimated, attempted to capture the presidential palace by assault. They failed and 30 of them were arrested in the palace gardens.

They also attempted to seize the navy arsenal, located on an island near the center of the city, and the National Telegraph building, in the heart of downtown Rio De Janeiro near the waterfront.

Police Chief Mueller's broadcast, first asserting President Vargas dominated the situation, described the "terrorism" of the Integralists.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Probe of Lobbies Should Cover Both Sides, and Include Jimmy Roosevelt

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I should like to indorse Colonel Frank Knox's advice to any self-respecting editor to tell Senator Minton and his lobby committee to go to hell.

But I am already committed to the attitude that, inasmuch as the committee has been harassing persons who are said to have lobbied against the administration, the inquiry should now deal similarly with those mysterious messengers, claiming White House authority, who lobbied for the reorganization bill and for other administration measures.

First of all on that list it should summon, as I have said before, Jimmy Roosevelt, who was reported to have given private assurance to certain interests that they need not fear that the bill, if passed, would be applied to their detriment. And, inasmuch as the president himself specifically authorized the examination of the income tax returns of witnesses brought before the committee, Jimmy's own returns, particularly those for the period between his father's election and his own induction into an influential office in the White House, should be examined and broken down.

It should be established whether Jimmy did important business with corporations and individuals whose interests were so placed that they might have suffered or prospered by any decision of any government bureau having to do with permits or privileges, such as liquor interests and radio interests. And, in justice to Jimmy himself, who, it is to be hoped, would prove himself innocent of such dealings, the executives of such corporations and such individuals also should be called to give an account of their dealings, if any, under the authority of such government agencies.

I have heard such inquisitiveness rebuked as an attempt to strike at the president through the conduct of his family.

That criticism leaves me puzzled because it seems to imply that a detailed examination of Jimmy's income tax returns would disclose material which might be used to the president's detriment. I cannot agree with this assumption, preferring to believe that there has been nothing questionable or unethical in Jimmy's business affairs and that he would be able to prove that there wasn't.

This talk of an attempt to strike at the president through a member of his family appears to me to convict Jimmy without a hearing and to bespeak a determination to cover up conduct which might embarrass the president.

What kind of honesty is that? Obviously, if Jimmy's business dealings have been innocent of pressure or the exploitation of the great popular mandate, as it has been called, no revelation of the details could cause his father any political or personal discomfort. And certainly there is no less reason to examine Jimmy's income tax returns than those of other persons, hostile to the New Deal, who were able to vindicate themselves.

As to whether Jimmy could be regarded as a lobbyist I see no doubt. Washington is full of lobbyists. The most spontaneous argument or mere discussion of a pending issue between a citizen and a statesman or a bureau man in which the citizen attempts to press his views on the other may be regarded as lobbying.

Men and women lobby in the cocktail room and the dining room of the hotels, at parties and dinners and, indeed, in the White House. I have seen in the president's private office Mr. Charlie Michelson, who holds, or did hold at my last information on the subject, a commisison from a big radio company. I have to remark that there are many corporations which would wish to place a representative in the White House with latchkey privileges and that at least one citizen questions the propriety of this.

This lobby committee is within its rights so far as I can see, but I don't see that it has shown any intention to exercise the same rights in the direction of other lobbyists who, in consistency, should be called.

I hope the committee doesn't mean to tell us that the lobbying on the reorganization bill was all against the bill and that nobody lobbied for it. We all know better than that, and, however strongly we may feel that harassment, badgering and even persecution are indecent, it must be allowed that, in consistency and fairness, the lobbyists for the other side should be exposed to the same treatment.

Moreover this committee can't acquit itself of witch-hanging until it calls up every member of the senate to tell under oath who lobbied him for, as well as against, the bill and what promises and threats were uttered, and by whom, to induce him to vote for it.

I wouldn't tell the committee to go to hell.

I would say: — "Get Jimmy Roosevelt in here with his income tax returns and put him over the same jumps that you are trying to put me over. I'll take any jump he'll take."

Jimmy seems to be our first bashful Roosevelt.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The "tank" on the back lot is covered over with cloth to keep out the sunlight, and the cloth—hundreds of yards of it—billows and flaps loudly in the wind.

The "tank" is an oversized swimming pool, surrounded on three sides by a cyclorama of grey which substitutes admirably for far horizons in sea scenes. For waves gasoline motors on the far side, out of camera range, can churn up a stiff running surf.

The other day Loretta Young and David Niven, both fully clothed, spent hours being 'dunked' after the collision of their sailboats Joel McCrea, wearing swimming trunks and a flannel beach robe, spent hours on a rocky, dry projection in the corner of the tank, all ready to help out in the rescue under William Seiter's direction for "Three Blind Mice."

By lunch-time the collision business, and the scene in which Loretta (who really can't swim) knocks out Niven to lug him to shore had been finished. What had to be done in the afternoon was the scene in which Loretta and Niven crawl up on McCrea's rock.

Clad in dry duplicates of their morning costumes—sailing duds—the pair descended gingerly from the rock into the water where several prop-men, in trunks, worked and swam. Niven dunked himself completely. Loretta threw back her head to sop her hair thoroughly, and they were ready. Sitting on the rock, feet dangling in the water, both splashed water over themselves to stay dripping. There wasn't even a hair-dresser in sight.

When they shot the scene, Loretta's hair was as stringy and wet as yours would be in the same situation. (They've stopped that business of half-drowned heroines coming up with permanent waves unmoistened.)

Then for a second "take" they wanted to move the rock, or the little rock beside the big one. This should have been a tough job: we waited around to see the fun. We pictured a half-dozen prop-men in there pushing and groaning. But what happened? They slung a long rope under the rock, did a little easy tugging—from the dry floor—and the heavy business glided along smoothly—on casters. (But it wasn't so heavy, at that—just a framework rock.)

All this time Loretta Young and David Niven stayed in the water, up to their chins—"We've got to," called Loretta, "we were freezing up there!"

'ROMANCE OF GLASS' TOPIC AT GUILD MEET

Mrs. Paul Williams Speaker at Hobby Luncheon of Congregational Church Group; Mrs. C. H. Bell Hostess for Affair.

AT THE MEETING of the Pilgrim guild of the First Congregational church which was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bell, Dickson parkway, Mrs. Paul W. Williams presented the paper on "Romance of Old Glass." The affair was a hobby luncheon at which the members exhibited various art objects and collectors' pieces.

Assisting Mrs. Bell receive the 44 members present were Mrs. Ralph Emerson, Mrs. Roscoe Gage, Mrs. C. G. Hillier, Mrs. W. B. Hallum, Mrs. F. A. Burger, Mrs. R. F. Steinbrey, Mrs. Marion Hawkins, Mrs. Walter T. Jameson and Mrs. Frank Hoffman.

Mrs. J. H. Gongwer was in charge of the program. A trio presented background music for the talk including 'Long, Long Ago," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," and Beethoven's "Minuet." Trio members were Mrs. Emery Smith, Mrs. Corson Brower and Mrs. Claude Ewing.

In her introduction Mrs. Williams spoke of hobbies in general before proceeding to give her paper on glass in which she traced the history and exhibited various pieces. She told the ancient myth which recounts how a group of Phoenician sailors discovered glass by accident when they built a fire on a sandy beach.

The first glass of which we are certain is the Venetian. The earliest industry in this country was the making of glass at Jamestown in 1607. This was the first glass factory and in its beads were made to trade with the Indians.

Steigel Ware.

Steigel, the famous maker of glass who was born in Cologne, glassmaking center from Roman times, was the subject of the greater part of the discussion. "He was a romantic character, picturesque, little understood, but creating glass of delicacy and perfection," she stated.

It is in honor of Steigel that the Manheim feast of roses is held every year at Manheim. The occasion celebrates the time Steigel exacted a red rose as payment for a lot. He died at a comparatively early age and was laid in an unmarked grave.

There are three types of glass, Mrs. Williams pointed out. The blown, molded and pressed. One of the most popular of today's collectors' pieces is the cup plate. This small plate was used to rest cups on in the days before handles were used. The plates commemorate various historical events and persons including Bunker Hill, Franklin, the Eagle, Fort Pitt and Clay. Others are the heart and the plough series.

Interest Awakens.

"It matters little," Mrs. Williams explained, "which particular kind of hobby we have or which old American art we study for it is an indication of the awakening of interest in the charm of our own historical background. It shows an aroused interest in the beauty of early American craftsmanship, and American antiques afford to all an opportunity to gain a knowledge of our heritage."

Some of the display pieces loaned by members included a Steigel flip-glass, the Daisy and Button, Barbarey, Shell and Tassel, Wildflower, Bellflower and other designs.

The next meeting of the guild will be June 14 at the home of Mrs. C. H. Small, West Second street.

Selfishness Apparent In Girl's Ways

By VIRGINIA LEE

What do I think of a girl who's virtually engaged to a man and when hard luck hits him and he loses his job, tells him about other fellows who would like to take her out and how well they always treated her?

I have had this problem before. We must give the girl credit for one thing. I suppose there never was a man who lost his job and tried to find another one, but that includes his girl friends—and that his relatives and friends—and that sneaking suspicion that he isn't looking hard enough for another. I don't know why this is, but I know it to be a fact. They don't mean to and don't want to, and the right kind of relatives and friends would sooner die than admit to the poor jobless man that they have any such thought, but it usually persists, and he is sure to feel it, too.

Doesn't Love Unselfishly.

But there is the rub! If your girl friend, J. R. D., really cares for you in the right way, she will never, never, mention another boy who would give her good times, but always try to encourage you and cheer you by saying that she prefers you to anyone else, and that she will stand by you. She will show her faith in you by saying that she knows you will soon get work and be all right. That is the loyal and loving spirit which women at all times have displayed to keep their men encouraged.

So, you see, I don't think this girl loves you in the right way. Maybe she is just young and thoughtless, but she certainly isn't showing the right spirit.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have just finished reading your article in which Susan made the assertion that there were few decent boys. I wish to contradict this statement. I have associated with quite a few boys and I can truthfully say that 95 per cent of them conduct themselves as gentlemen when they are in the presence of 'LADIES.'—J. M."

And that is telling Susan, isn't it, J. M.?

POLLY ANNA: I did answer your letter and think probably you have seen it before now. I don't think it pays for a young girl to get mixed up with a man so much older. If your foster parents are unkind you are old enough to leave and make your own living. However, don't forget that they have been giving you a home. Be sure to think of the good things they have done for you as well as their "meanness."

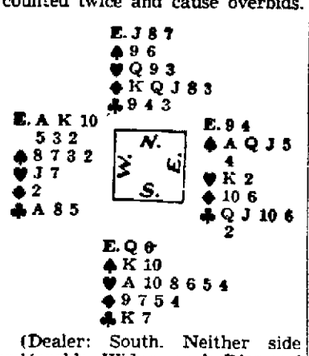
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIVE-SUIT BIDDING

INTRODUCTION of the Eagle suit influences all departments of your tactics, though the same general principles apply. Besides having more tricks to play, you have more cards to bid and hence require somewhat different conventions. Since the ultimate declarer can add the value of the widow card to his hand or dummy, thus making possible a discard, there must be some way to protect a side from having both partners count it. Otherwise it will get counted twice and cause overbids.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable. Widow card: Diamond A).

With an extra suit, there are 25 per cent more honors in Five-Suit decks than in the standard. Thus a sound opening bid would seem to require about 25 per cent more honor strength than you heretofore asked. That is not really so, however, as even a small spot card in the widow has value in allowing you to discard. Therefore, only very slightly enhanced honor strength is needed. And if the widow card is a high honor, you may not need any more.

On the deal shown, the diamond A may be safely treated by the dealer as if he held it, so he can bid 1-Heart. West also can count on its value if he becomes declarer, so he can without hesitation overcall with 1-Eagle — which, of course, he could do even without it. Fine players have already got together on the idea that the first member of a pair to bid or double counts the honor strength of the widow card for the side. If the partner now bids, such as North calling 2-Diamonds, he may be considering the widow as adding to his length in diamonds, but should not count its honor strength in his calculations.

Here, then, is the most important new set of conventions for bidding: The first member of a pair who bids or doubles counts the honor value of the widow card; the partner never counts its honor value; the first member of the side who names the same suit as the widow counts it in his suit length, but his mate doesn't.

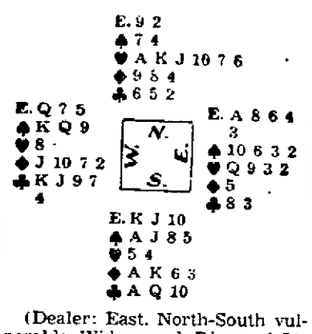
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable. Widow card: Diamond Q).

At Five-Suit, if West leads the club 7 against South's 3-No Trump contract, should South place the widow card in his hand or the dummy, and what should he discard?

A paste made of starch and buttermilk spread over an ink spot on a rug will remove the spot. Let the paste remain on until it is dry, then rub it off.

Things To Do For Benefit Of Your Hair

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Is your crowning glory a little on the dull side these days? If it is, now is the time to get a little brightness into that hair of yours. Bring out the natural lights and have gleaming tresses for the heavy date who is planning to take you for a country outing.

These tips are for the enterprising young lady who does her hair at home. First brush your hair thoroughly to remove all the loose dust and dirt. Next treat yourself to a two-minute massage —your scalp will appreciate it. Then you are ready for the shampoo itself. There are lots of excellent prepared shampoos on the market. Some have foamy oil bases that condition while they clean. But if you prefer to make your own shampoo, get a mild bland soap and shave it into water. Melt it on the stove until it becomes a jelly. Use tepid water, never very cold or very hot, for the scalp is sensitive.

Wet your hair with the warm water and rub your shampoo well into your hair and scalp with your finger tips, or use a shampoo brush if you prefer it. Give it a thorough rinse and then apply more shampoo. The first washing will take away the dust and dirt and the second cleanses the hair and scalp.

Dip a brush into your shampoo and scrub all around your hair line. This will remove any remaining dirt.

Good Rinses.

Now for a final rinse to get all the soap out.

If you are a blond whose hair is darkening, keep it very clean and avoid tonics or hairdressings that will make it look darker. The juice of two lemons in your fourth rinsing water will lighten it. A camomile rinse will also lighten your hair and bring out its natural lights without harming or dyeing it. Here is the formula for the camomile rinse: Put one handful of camomile flowers into a pint of boiling water. Let it boil a minute and strain it through cheesecloth. Then add enough water to make a quart. Sponge or pour the rinse over the hair several times and don't rinse it off.

Peroxide rinses which are strong enough to take the color out of the hair are very drying and are often harmful.

Henna rinses will temporarily bring out the reddish lights in brown or auburn hair. Here is a good one that can be made at home: Put from one to five ounces of henna leaves, depending on how much red you want, into a pint of water and bring to a boil. Strain and add enough water to make a quart. Add eight or ten drops of vinegar. The vinegar will bring out the sheen.

This shampoo routine is a pleasant and inexpensive one to follow at home, and yours will be the head of the class.

My Neighbor Says:

When flowers are grown for cut blooms only, the most satisfactory and economical plan is to plant them in long rows, with ample space between the rows and between the individuals in the rows. This plan gives them sufficient room for full development.

Chantilly dressing is made by mixing ½ cup of whipped cream to cup of salad dressing and then adding ¼ cup diced pineapple and ¼ cup seeded white cherries. This dressing should be served on chilled diced fruit which has been arranged on lettuce leaves.

Half lemon juice and half lime juice substituted for vinegar used in French dressing gives a tasty dressing for fruit or vegetable salads.

Dry picking is better than scalding when plucking a chicken or turkey. Unless done very quickly, scalding will harden the skin.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

THAT MARY wished to keep me from telephoning Dicky was evident, despite her pretended nochalance. And there really was no reason why she should not attend to the matter and save me time, as she had explained.

But something within me protested—without the sanction of my better judgment—against agreeing to her proposition. I had no wish to see my husband or talk to him at any length, but with the perversity of one irritating a sore place, I wanted to hear his voice and learn his reaction to my going home to welcome the children. Although I refused to admit it, even to myself, I also yearned to know whether he would betray by voice or words any knowledge of the drunken woman's telephoning the hotel, of which he must have learned through the ubiquious hotel manager. Of course, he had no knowledge of our having overheard his interview with the woman at the French restaurant, so I know I could expect no veiled reference to that, but the telephoning, as Lillian's old black Betty used to say, was "something else again."

Mary was waiting for my answer, and I sensed something in the waiting other than the plausible, nonchalant courtesy of her offer to tell Dicky of the children's forthcoming arrival at the farm.

For some reason, she did not wish me to talk to Dicky, and again I wondered how much she knew of the "jam" in which my husband had told me he was immersed.

But, of course, I could let no hint of my suspicion appear in my answer, and I took refuge in effusive courtesy.

"That's awfully sweet of you, dearest," I said, "and I am exceedingly grateful for your thoughtfulness. But I really have plenty of time, and I think my husband might be offended—and justly so—if I delegated to anyone else the mission of telling him when the children are coming home."

"I never heard such nonsense," Mary scolded, not rudely, but with distinct exasperation in her tones. "But, of course, if you've made up your mind, there's no changing you. So go ahead and work your fool head off. See if I care. I can give you one hunch, though, that will save you time. If you can't locate Uncle Dicky at his studio just leave a message for him with some of his fellow artists. There's no use telephoning the magazine. I've tried it. He's never there, and he has the finest bunch of nit-wits for an office force that ever infested a magazine."

A warning bell sounded away back in my brain. What was it all about? Dicky had said, "I'd rather you wouldn't telephone the magazine." And Mary was giving me a veiled warning with the same meaning.

I would have been something superhuman if I had suppressed the impulse to find out for myself what might lie behind that reluctance of both Dicky and Mary to allow me any contact with the art magazine of which my husband and Edith Fairfax were co-owners. But I gave no possible indication of my resolve in my reply to Mary.

"I'll remember your warning," I told her with a light laugh. "I have a constitutional aversion to telephone colloquies with morons."

"You'll certainly get your aversion 'fed fat' if you tackle that bunch," she retorted, but I read relief in her voice, and quickly changed the subject to that of the precautions I wished her to take while I should be absent.

"If you'll call Miss Whitlock back," I suggested, "we'll go into a 'committee of the whole' about things to remember while I'm gone."

"I know 'em already," Mary said saucily, with her hand upon Miss Whitlock's door, and when the nurse came back into the room, she queried her with the same infectious nonchalance.

"Can you say the five commandments Auntie Madge is leaving for us?" she asked. "I can."

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint.

Orange or Tomato Juice or
Halves of Grapefruits
Cereal with Milk
Old Fashioned Buckwheat Cakes
Sausage Syrup
Coffee

Dear me, I hadn't thought about good old-fashioned buckwheat cakes for a long time. I remember when I was a girl and visited at a farm with some dear friends, that we had them every morning for breakfast. If you ate them daily for the winter, you were likely to get a spotty complexion, I believe. As old-fashioned furniture, old-fashioned clothes and old-fashioned dishes are very popular just now, why not serve this menu for late Sunday breakfast or "brunch" when you have guests? I imagine it would make a big hit. Get some good country sausage, too, to serve with the cakes, and maybe you can get some fresh maple syrup to serve, too. You can omit the cereal if you consider the menu too heavy.

Today's Recipes.

OLD-FASHIONED BUCKWHEAT CAKES — Three cups buckwheat flour, one cup white flour, two tablespoons sugar, one cake compressed yeast dissolved in one-half cup lukewarm water. Mix two flours and the sugar. Add enough warm water to make a stiff batter, mix smooth, then beat about one minute. Add dissolved yeast, cover and let rise over night in warm place. In the morning, beat batter well, add one teaspoon salt and half a teaspoon soda and enough warm water or milk to make batter of right consistency. Bake on hot griddle.

When all cakes for one morning are baked, to remaining batter add buckwheat flour and white flour half and half until batter is very stiff. Set aside in a cool place until evening, then thin batter to proper consistency with sweet warm milk or warm water and place, well covered, in warm room. In morning, repeat operation of previous day. Start batter fresh every week, or as soon as it becomes sour, as it will if kept too warm.

Canapes.

Spread thin slices of boiled tongue with salad dressing. Sprinkle with chopped pickle and finely minced onion. Roll and wrap each slice in waxed paper. Chill. Then, using a sharp knife, cut each roll in half. Dip in salad dressing. Cover with minced celery and parsley combined. Insert wooden picks.

Cream of Corn Soup.

Three tablespoons butter or bacon fat, one teaspoon minced onion, one teaspoon minced green pepper, three tablespoons flour, two cups milk, one can corn, salt, pepper, parika. Melt the butter, add minced onion and green pepper and cook three minutes. Stir in the flour, and when well blended add the milk slowly. Stir until smooth and thick and let boil one minute. Add corn and seasonings, reheat and serve with crackers. —Edith Barber.

THEATER

PRODUCTION NOTES: Margaret Culking Banning's magazine story "Enemy Territory," will be made with Herbert Marshall, Virginia Bruce and Mary Astor. It's the conflict between a first wife and her child and the husband and his second wife in a small city . . . Clarence Brown, director, has returned from Europe where he made backgrounds for the Norma Shearer-Clark Gable picture "Idiot's Delight." Brown is also preparing for the next Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald picture "Sweethearts" . . . Luise Rainer's next picture "Toy Wife" is almost ready for release. Melvyn Douglas, as her husband, shoots Robert Young with whom she elopes, in the romantic city of Old New Orleans . . .

The Hardy Family.

Another of the Judge Hardy pictures, one of the most popular series pictures, will be the attraction at the Ohio for the last three days of the week, starting Thursday. In this, "Judge Hardy's Children," the judge goes to Washington to head an investigating committee against the power utilities. With him goes his wife, his daughter Marian and his son Andy. The affairs of his children embroil the judge in what promises to be a national scandal, but at the right moment the wise father and judge turns it to his own ends. Lewis Stone and Fay Holden are the judge and his wife, Cecelia Parker is Marian and Mickey Rooney is Andy.

Find Redemption.

There is more than a hint of the general plot used in "The Miracle Man" one of the greatest of silent films, in "Stolen Heaven," which is current at the Madison. A gang of crooks accidentally find refuge in the home of a gentle old man—this time a musician—and at least two of them find love and redemption through their association with him. Lewis Stone plays the old concert pianist whose ability is gone with his confidence in himself, but who regains it through the inspiration of the girl. Gene Raymond and Olympe Branda, French actress, are the jewel thieves who hide out with the musician. There is a lot of suspense in the climax when the girl and man stay with the old musician during his concert although they know it means arrest.

Shares Acting Honors.

Although Spencer Tracy won the Academy award this year for the best performance of any actor in American films last year with his first Portuguese fisherman, Manuel in "Captains Courageous", acting honors were pretty evenly divided between Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew. As the arrogant little snob who takes a terrific beating through the opinion of the fishermen on the boat on which he is stranded, Freddie does a piece of acting that has never been topped by any child star. The picture, which plays a revise engagement at the Majestic, is starkly dramatic with highlights of tenderness between the fishermen and the boy. Lionel Barrymore, Melvyn Douglas and Mickey Rooney are in the cast. The second feature is "Look Out For Love" with Tulio Carminati and Anna Neagle.

Eddie In Rome.

"Roman Scandals," an Eddie Cantor musical film of "epic" proportions, which the Ritz is offering today and through Thursday, has the little comedian scampering through ancient Rome clad in a toga and running around in chariots. He starts out as a wistful-eyed lad in West Rome, Okla., whose imagination carries nim back to the glories of old Rome in the time of the Caesars. A flock of beauties, such as the Caesars never saw, adorn the film. Cantor is suported by Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, David Manners, Edward Arnold and Verree Teasdale. Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone and Robert Young in "The Bride Wore Red," is also on the program.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 12.

According to the lunar transits, this is a day beset by conflicting astral conditions. While financial and business prospects are under expansive influences, yet there are some sinister indications hinting of treachery, fraud and irregular dealings. Be alert to these and guard against incriminating or ill-advised speech or writings. Avert scandal.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of mixed influences, with definite attainments in a financial way and in the indorsement and solid co-operation of superiors. However, there are portents of fraud, trickery, questionable dealings and much underhand conniving. Be vigilant to these and be careful with all writings and speech, lest these precipitate disagreeable conditions or probable scandal.

A child born on this day may be capable and ambitious, mentally quick and clever, with possibly more craftiness than integrity.

Your Dreams? Surely They Have Meaning.

Learn Truth About Dreams.

"Listen to what I dreamed about Bob last night," Polly says to Muriel.

"I could see him standing way off in the distance, frowning at me. The orchestra was playing Whistle While You Work, and I had my hands full of silver dollars. Pretty soon I started tossing the dollars at Bob until, all of a sudden, the music faded away and we were standing side by side, grinning at each other."

No wonder Polly's puzzled. Recently she quarreled bitterly with Bob. But her dream shows her real feelings. Money represents the forgiveness she'd like to offer him if she could only conquer her pride, symbolized by music in the dream.

Psychologists say that most of our "silly" dreams are messages from the unconscious mind. To dream of a policeman may mean your conscience is hurting you. Wild animals? Your emotions are a bit unruly.

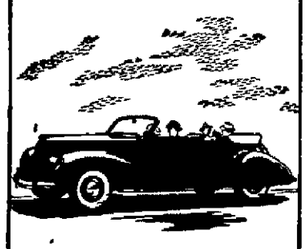
"NEVER HAVE I EXPERIENCED SUCH A Thrill FROM DRIVING"



Keep in mind two things about the Lincoln-Zephyr:

1. It is a truly different car.
2. Never has any car had more enthusiastic owners!

As to point one, consider the V-12 engine, the unique bridge-type body construction in closed types, the economy record of 14 to 18 miles per gallon, the safety and comfort, and the medium price.

As to point two, consider this letter: "I have owned and driven several makes of cars, but never before have I experienced such a thrill from driving. In my opinion, the Lincoln-Zephyr more nearly approaches the ideal car than anything I have ever owned."

BOOKIES QUOTE 2 TO 1 ON JOE AGAINST MAXIE, DITTO ON MANN.

By PAT ROBINSON
(Pinchhitting for Davis J. Walsh)

NEW YORK — (INS) — Along Bash Boul' today we find the bookies, quoting 2 to 1 on Louis against Schmeling . . . ditto on Mann against Galento . . . and 8 to 5 on Ross against Armstrong . . . with the warning . . . that the odds against Schmeling probably will drop . . . and the odds on Ross lengthen.

Here are three lovely eyefulls . . . Alice Marble, Dorothy May Bundy, and Sarah Palfrey Fabyan . . . heading for the Queen Mary . . . and all confident they . . . with Helen Jacobs, Helen Wills Moody, and Gracyn Wheeler . . . already abroad . . . will trim the British gals . . . in the Wightman cup matches.

And here's dapper Jim Crowley . . . Notre Dame's gift to Fordham . . . boasting his Johnny Kuzman will be sure-fire all-America tackle next fall. "This fellow," grins Jim, "could break Gargantua in two." Pittsburgh please note.

Tom Smith, Seabiscuit's trainer, puts the okay on Belmont as "the perfect track." He says the Biscuit likes the going . . . and will be ready to give War Admiral a while of an argument come May 30.

And Joe DiMaggio . . . hitting a cool .500 . . . things spring training is all right for the old birds . . . "but a kid like me doesn't need much." Joe insists he is not after the home run crown this semester . . . but figures he ought to get about 40 "just swinging."

And the last I saw of Johnny Goodman . . . just before he and his Brother-Walker-Cuppers boarded the Bremen last night. He was moaning about his tough luck . . . in having to meet his pal Ray Billows in the second round of the British Amateur at Troon, Scotland . . . and Ray was moaning even louder than Johnny.

Here's Lefty Gomez . . . the great lover of the diamond . . . vowing that hereafter the only curves he wants to see are the kind the throws himself.

Here's Gene (White Tie) McCann, Yankee scout, just back from a southern trip . . . declaring the best college prospects this year are in the Carolinas. He likes Shortstops Bergman of Duke and Steinwicz of North Carolina.

"They told me down there not to bother with Duke . . . because Connie Mack got them all," said Gene . . . "and I told them maybe that's why Connie always was in last place."

And here's Max Schmeling, Joe Jacobs, and Tony Galento . . . Max is selling his Baad Sarrow estate . . . to tenant a new one of 2.000 acres he bought near the Polish border . . . says his private preserve is full of stags and pheasants . . . it's near a town called Rummelsburg.

Two-Ton Tony Is Down to 230.

TWO-TON TONY is down to a svelte 230 . . . and at that poundage promises to stop Mann in two heats . . . "and I can lick that Louis, too" But refuses to say what he could do to Schmeling . . . "because Max is my friend."

When working out, Two-Ton is wrapped with yards and yards of wool around his fat torso . . . then on top of that goes a heavy sweater, and atop that a heavy leather harness. Incidentally, Tony punches the small bag better than any heavyweight of the last 20 years.

Rank as Favorites In Indianapolis Grind

Four old standbys will make the crowd sit up and take notice in the 500-mile race May 30th at the Indianapolis motor speedway.

They are all former winners of the big race, one is the present AAA champion and the other three have held the national championship. Their names are: Wilbur Shaw, Louis Meyer, Kelly Petillo and Wild Bill Cummings.

Shaw is an Indianapolis boy, and has the dazzling 1937 victory to his credit. He probably will go into the race as a prime favorite to repeat, a feat which never has been performed at Indianapolis.

Meyer is the miracle man of 500-mile racing. The checkered flag waved for him in 1928, 1933 and 1936, and he finished fourth last Decoration day.

Petillo beat Shaw to the wire in 1935.

Wild Bill Cummings won the big race in 1934. He was third in 1935, left at the post in 1936 when his clutch froze and sixth last year.

But What If Maxie Doesn't Win?---McLemore

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U P)—Max Schmeling seems to be spending most of his time these days telling everybody what he is going to do after he licks Joe Louis.

Very interesting. But not half so interesting as if he'd explain what he is going to do if he doesn't lick Joe Louis And it is entirely possible that he won't.

A victorious Schmeling — a champion of the world—would go back to Berlin to rival Horst Wessel as a Nazi hero.

Nordic supremacy would have been upheld by a German warrior.

But what is worrying me (and I speak as a friend and admirer of Schmeling) is how Der Fuehrer Hitler is going to react if der right hand of Der Black Bomber hits Der Schmeling on der jaw and knocks him out for der evening.

Right now Schmeling and Hitler are like this, and I am busy putting my two fingers together to illustrate to you what chums they are.

I have no doubt but what Schmeling knows how completely his standing in Germany will be changed by a defeat at Louis' hands.

In the first place, the entire German nation expects him to win, no matter who his opponent might be, because he is a German. A defeat by anyone would heap ignominy on his head. And secondly, a defeat by Louis would not only heap ignominy, but a side order of French fried disgrace and a compote of shame on his head.

If you are looking for a reason to pick Schmeling to win, don't overlook the fires of nationalism that will be burning in his breast on that night in June He'll be shooting the works, not only for his country but for himself. He knows what is at stake, and if I know Max as well as I think I do, he'll be a desperately hard man to keep on that floor.

At least, that's the way I size it up. But, of course, I am just lately returned from sizing up Bull Lea as the derby winner, so I can be wrong.

Allen Benched By Lame Back

Cleveland Hurler Out for Indefinite Period.

NEW YORK—(U P)—The wavering pennant hopes of the Cleveland Indians were given another setback today when it was announced that their star hurler, Johnny Allen, would on the shelf for an indefinite period because of a lame back

Allen was to have pitched the opening contest of an abbreviated two game series against the New York Yankees With Allen on the inactive list Manager Oscar Vitt selected the veteran Mel Harder to face the Yanks.

Rollie Hemsley, the playboy catcher who has been used thus far exclusively to catch the offerings of Bob Feller, was to be the receiver. Vitt said he believed Hemsley would steady the wobbly Cleveland pitching staff.

Yankee Stadium long has been a jinx to Cleveland teams, but the current Indians must gain at least an even break here to boost their average for the first eastern invasion of the season to .500. Thus far they have won but three out of seven games Last year Cleveland triumphed only once in 11 starts here

The Indians' scheduled game at Boston yesterday was postponed because of rain

117 COLTS NOMINATED FOR FAIR STAKE RACES

Purses Expected to Run in Neighborhood of $600 for Fairground Bill.

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

COLT stake races to feature the county fair speed program, July 27-29, have attracted one of the most formidable fields of two and three-year-old harness horses ever nominated for a meeting in these parts.

B. H. Huston, superintendent of speed, announced today with the closing of the entry list that 117 horses have been nominated for the four colt stake races to feature the first two days of the annual fair.

Big Purses Assured.

Race purses running in the neighborhood of $600 are assured for the colt events by the record entry.

The two-year-old trot billed for the opening day lists 39 nominees, the two-year-old pace, 29; three-year-old trot, 25, and three-year-old pace, 24.

Naturally, little is known about the competitive skill of the two-year-olds, but reports from the stables indicate that the yearlings will supply some fine entertainment at the Fairground in July.

The three-year-old field is filled with performers of proven class.

Of course, leading the field of three-year-olds is Frank Callahan's Tiffin pacer, Callie G., who set the record mark of 2:06¾ on a half mile oval last summer.

The Youngstown charges are being trained at Pinehurst, and are showing plenty of class in their conditioning races.

Millikin has a promising trotter in Meredith who is also being prepared at Pinehurst.

Stables In Florida.

Hilt and Martin, who are training their stable in Florida, have nominated Airflame for the three-year-old trot. Alvarado, another Florida-trained trotter, has been entered by William Hughes, Cleveland.

Another outstanding trotter nominated is the Bob Plaxico-trained Miss Pittsburgh, who is owned by Jack Shearer of Canton. The fair card will consist of four races each day, with the stake events on Wednesday and Thursday, July 27 and 28. A 2:12 and 2:17 trot and a 2:11 and 2:16 pace are on the final day's program, according to the schedule outlined by Huston.

Coaches Have Picked Last All-Ohio Team

Criticized Mentors Plan to Leave Thankless Job To Associated Press In Future.

NO more All-Ohio scholastic football clubs will be selected by the gridiron coaches' association, Fritz Howell, who gets around covering sports doings for the Associated Press in the Ohio sector, reports from Columbus. Too much criticism has met the group's selections, it seems. It will leave the thankless job to the Associated Press in the future . . . Detroit's Tony Piet has a brother trying to land a job with the Tiffin club, and Charley Gehringer has a cousin with the same outfit . . . Dave Brangaccio, Galion garment designer, wins the distinction of scoring the first hole-in-one of the year in this section. He "aced" the short No. 2 hole at Galion Sunday.

They are saying a lot of nice things about Don Scott, former Canton McKinley product, since his sterling play in the Ohio State practice game Saturday. He'll be a sophomore next fall . . .

E. M. Miller, who attracted a nice crowd to his auto races at the Fairground last summer, will put on a speed show in Mt. Vernon Sunday, and plans to put one on here later in the summer . . . Lawrin might have been nosed out in the Kentucky Derby stretch if he hadn't had a fair lead. It's being said that Lawrin's jockey eased up before reaching the finish line, mistaking the position of the "tape."

ONLY one of the three Mt. Vernon records held by Mansfield tracksters survived the onslaught in the N. C. O. tussle Saturday. That was Daryl Heiser's 17.2 mark in the low hurdles.—By Ruhl.

Prepare For All-Star Tilt

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)— Baseball's High Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, Ford Frick, president of the National league, and William Harridge, president of the American league, will meet here Monday to arrange all details necessary for the major league all-star game on July 6.

The principal detail to be arranged by the three-man advisory commission is the handling of the ticket sale and the procedure fans must follow to secure the coveted ducats.

Since it was announced last December that Cincinnati would be the site of the All-Star game the office of the Cincinnati Reds had been flooded with ticket requests. All requests have been returned, however, and none will be accepted until after Monday's meeting.

Because of All-Star game restrictions which prohibit seats in any part of the playing enclosure and tickets which must be set aside for league and club officials, less than 26,000 tickets are expected to be available for the public.

Amazing Senators Stretch League Lead to Full Game

Nats Come Back With 3 Runs in 8th to Defeat Browns, 8 to 6.

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE

NEW YORK —(INS)— Setting a scorching pace in the American league, the amazing Washington Senators of Clark Griffith are showing the way to the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians today by one full game.

So far, the 1938 campaign has been one of long streaks. Just as the New York Giants climbed to the top of the National league with 11 straight wins, the Senators today boast seven successive victories. Oddly enough, they prolonged their streak at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, who suffered their eighth straight loss, 8 to 6.

Tied Up Tight.

With the New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox idle in New York, and the Cleveland Indians washed out at Boston, the league today is tied up as tight as a drum with only two games separating the first four clubs.

An important showdown begins today with the Indians opening a two-game series with the Yankees here. Tied for second place with 13 wins and seven losses, the two clubs will test each other first hand. From this series may emerge a good line on the pennant winner.

The Senator came from behind with a three-run rally against the Browns in the eighth inning when Zeke Bonura drove in two runs with the bases full and Hughes' error accounted for another. Four pitchers worked for Washington—Hogsett, Kohlman, Weaver and Phebus, Weaver being credited with the win. The Browns continued to hit the ball well, but Newsom and Tamulis were weak in the clutch on the mound.

The Detroit Tigers and Athletics were rained out in Philadelphia.

In the National league, the New York Giants stretched their league lead to four and a half games by vanquishing the second place Chicago Cubs, 5 to 1, thus continuing their successful invasion of the west. A three-run rally featured by Hank Leiber's double routed Bill Lee in the first inning. Joe Moore got four hits in five trips to the plate for the Giants, in the 12-hit barrage.

Aided by Dusty Cooke's two doubles and two singles, the Cincinnati Reds came from behind to pound out a 7 to 3 win over the Phillies in the odd game of a three-game series.

Beaned by Catcher.

Hershel Martin, the Phils' centerfielder, was beaned by a ball thrown by Reds' Catcher Willard Hershberger, who threw to second attempting to retire Martin as the latter stole second. After lying unconscious for five minutes, Martin was removed to a hospital where an X-ray was made of his head.

The Brooklyn Dodgers smashed out 16 hits and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 10 to 2. Luke Hamlin held the Cards to six hits to score the victory. Ernie Koy led the Dodgers' attack with two doubles and two singles.

Rain in Pittsburgh kept the Bees and Pirates idle.

'Dusty' Gains Stride as Red

Cooke Obtains Four Hits In Cincinnati Win.

CINCINNATI —(U.P.)— Back in 1931 the New York Yankees had on their roster a young outfielder who promised to become one of the game's brightest "name" stars. He was Allan (Dusty) Cooke.

A shoulder injury received while attempting to make a diving catch robbed Cooke of the chance to live up to expectations. His throwing arm was affected by the injury and the Yankees finally shipped him to the Boson Red Sox from where he slipped back into the minors.

On Way Again.

Today Cooke once again was on the way to major league stardom, this time as a member of the climbing Cincinnati Reds.

Dusty Cooke

Cooke was the principal factor in the Reds' 7 to 3 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies yesterday. The husky outfielder secured four hits in five trips to the plate to pace the Redleg attack.

Cooke was off to a slow start at the plate this season but has been hitting hard in recent games and now has boosted his seasonal mark to near the .300 mark. Yesterday he drove in two runs and figured prominently in the scoring of four others.

"Jumbo Jim" Weaver, claimed on waivers by the Reds from the lowly St. Louis Browns, was the starting pitcher for Cincinnati. Weaver experienced considerable trouble with his control and finally had to be relieved in the sixth inning by Joe Cascarella. Cascarella pitched air tight ball the remainder of the distance and gained credit for the triumph.

Reds Shell Mulcahy.

Hugh Mulcahy started in the box for the Phils but was shelled from the hill in the seventh. Al Smith finished the contest.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Len Macaluso, Buffalo, won by disqualification over Wally Dusek, Omaha, 13:00, (heavyweights).

MR. GUMP IS BEING SQUEEZED TO THE WALL-THAT RIVAL GROUP HAS PUSHED THE STOCK DOWN 6½ POINTS TODAY- HE'S RUNNING AROUND IN CIRCLES SO FAST HE'S BUMPING INTO HIMSELF- WELL, I WARNED HIM-
PRIVATE MAY I
FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, BROWKER- EVERY TIME I TAKE DELIVERY ON A FRESH BLOCK OF STOCK THAT I CONTRACTED FOR, THE PRICE GOES LOWER! THAT FORCE CROWD HAS ME BOTTLED UP LIKE A MOUSE IN A TRAP! I'M HOOKED FOR MILLIONS ALREADY!

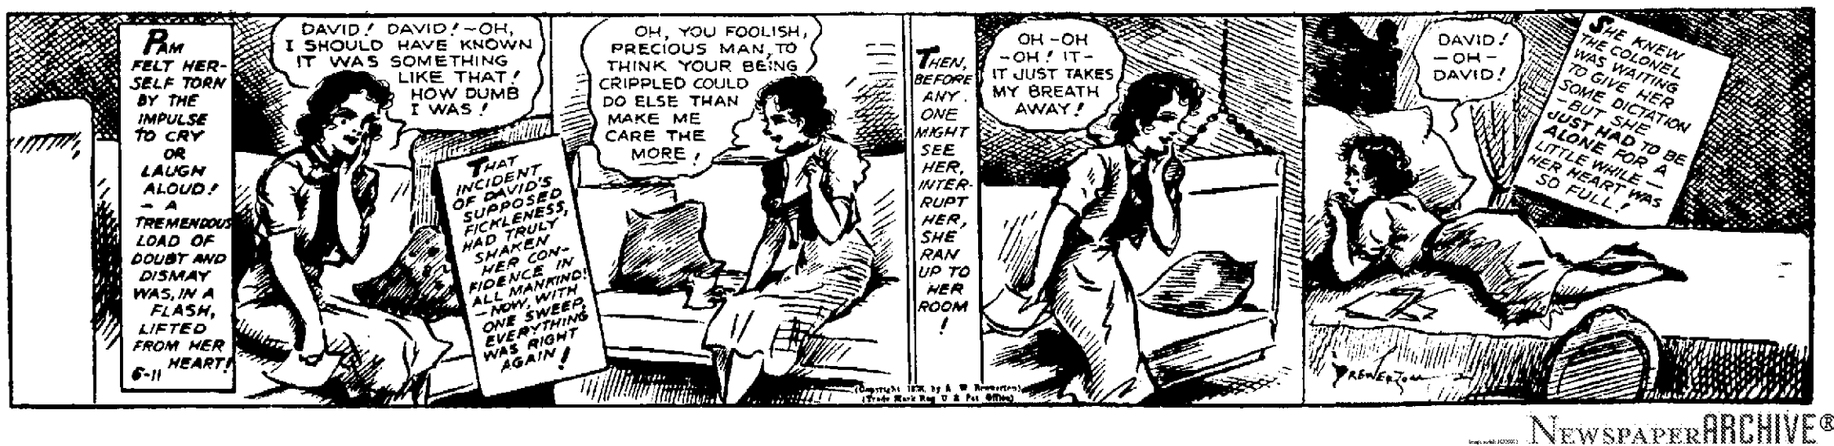
PAM— Conscience. By A. W. Brewerton



PAM FELT HERSELF TORN BY THE IMPULSE TO CRY OR LAUGH ALOUD! - A TREMENDOUS LOAD OF DOUBT AND DISMAY WAS, IN A FLASH, LIFTED FROM HER HEART!
DAVID! DAVID! -OH, I SHOULD HAVE KNOWN IT WAS SOMETHING LIKE THAT! HOW DUMB I WAS!
THAT INCIDENT OF DAVID'S SUPPOSED FICKLENESS, HAD TRULY SHAKEN HER CONFIDENCE IN ALL MANKIND! NOW, WITH ONE SWEEP, EVERYTHING WAS RIGHT AGAIN!
OH, YOU FOOLISH, PRECIOUS MAN, TO THINK YOUR BEING CRIPPLED COULD DO ELSE THAN MAKE ME CARE THE MORE!
THEN, BEFORE ANY ONE MIGHT SEE HER, INTERRUPT HER, SHE RAN UP TO HER ROOM!
OH-OH -OH! IT- IT JUST TAKES MY BREATH AWAY!
DAVID! -OH- DAVID!
SHE KNEW THE COLONEL WAS WAITING TO GIVE HER SOME DICTATION -BUT SHE JUST HAD TO BE ALONE FOR A LITTLE WHILE -- HER HEART WAS SO FULL!

UTILITIES HOLD ATTENTION OF STOCK DEALERS

Reports of Efforts to Work Out Power Problems Encourage Trading.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market struggled to get back on the rally side today and replaced small opening losses with gains later.

Reports of co-operative efforts between Washington and private utility interests to work out a solution of pending power problems, including government competition with the industry in the TVA territory, again turned the speculative spotlight on utilities. Holding company shares were traded briskly at rising prices.

Bonds mostly held previous gains. Major commodities pointed a little higher.

Hopes for a business upturn in the second half of the year were nursed in many places in Wall Street.

Mid-week industrial barometers showed little change in the recent pace.

The "Iron Age" said "no marked change has occurred in the character of the steel business nor is any expected during the next month or two at least."

Power output last week was off 10.9 per cent from the comparable 1937 figure against a year-to-year decline of 11.6 the previous week, the Edison Electric Institute reported.

PUMP PRIMING FOES UNLEASH FRESH ATTACK

Charge $3,000,000,000 Bill Would Make States, Cities Break Own Debt Laws.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A storm of bipartisan criticism broke in the house today over a provision in the $3.000.000,000 pump priming bill which some members said attempts to inveigle states and municipalities into breaking their own debt laws.

The section would authorize federal loans for public works projects to public agencies already in debt up to legal limits. These agencies then would pay back to the government 55 per cent of the cost of the projects, with interest, in 25 years.

Denounce Whole Bill.

Opponents singled out that provision for specific criticism after Republican house members issued a statement denouncing the entire bill. They termed it "another New Deal political raid on the treasury" that promised to increase next year's deficit to $5,000,000,000.

Supporters of the public works lending proposal said it was the only means by which some cities and states could participate in the new program.

Representative Bacon (R-NY), however, called the system "unmoral." Representative Umstead (D-NC), who led an unsuccessful attempt to delete it during consideration by the appropriations committee, asserted:

"I don't think the federal government ought to tempt local officials to avoid and evade existing statutes in order to secure public works projects."

House leaders held off debate on the bill long enough to ask approval of the compromise tax revision bill, to which the senate already has agreed.

With that vital legislation out of the way, the wage-hour measure was the only big issue making adjournment plans uncertain. While the bill will reach the house floor no later than May 23, the chances of obtaining earlier action decreased.

Democratic Leader Rayburn said it was impossible to set the time for winding up the session.

DAY STAYS OUT

Withdraws As Candidate For State Treasurer's Post.

FREMONT —(AP)— Harry S. Day, former state treasurer, decided today to withdraw as a Republican candidate for that office in the Aug. 9 primary. He said business and personal reasons prompted the change in his plans. He was treasurer from 1923-27 and 1931-37.

Don Ebright, Akron finance director, and John S. Edwards, former state senator from Licking county, have announced they would be candidates for treasurer.

PAYS $100 FINE IN LIQUOR CASE

Butler Man Convicted Of Possessing Untaxed Liquor.

L. F. Koontz, 39, proprietor of the "Kooler Keg," Butler beer parlor, was fined $100 and costs after he was found guilty before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court this morning of possession of untaxed liquor. He paid the amount and was released.

Koontz was arrested at his establishment Saturday night by Ernest Williams, state liquor investigator, and Deputy Sheriffs G. C. Humphrey and Glenn Freeman who said they found a bottle of whisky in the pocket of a coat in the kitchen of the beer parlor.

Koontz admitted ownership of the coat but contended the bottle had been "planted" in the garment. There was no tax stamps or labels on the bottle, the officers testified.

PARSONS CASE PROBE RENEWED

Fresh Clues Spur Hopes of Solving Mystery Early; Finding Body Key.

after search had begun, in the parked car on the Parsons property.

"Countess" Anna Kupryanova, the Parsons' friend and housekeeper, saw Mrs. Parsons talking with the couple. She did not see them anywhere in the vicinity of the Parsons' automobile and the assumption was that the kidnap note was planted even while police and g-men swarmed over the farm looking for clues.

If the note was authentic, the manner of its delivery would indicate a criminal with more than the average nerve of criminals—enough, in fact, to chance discovery by boldly returning to the farm, mingling with police and eventually planting the note in the automobile.

But if the note was not authentic it would indicate a crank or a murderer either possessed of iron nerve, mentally unbalanced or familiar enough in the neighborhood to approach the car unquestioned while police were searching for clues.

FUNDS ARRIVE

$12,700 Received From State for Sub-Divisions, Relief.

Checks for $10,533 in state funds for local operating expenses and $2,266 for poor relief had been received today by County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

The $10 533 allocation for local government is from state sales tax receipts and represents an increase of more than $1,000 over the county's share last month. Total allocations received by the county so far this year from that fund are $24,688, however, as compared with about $40,000 for the same period last year. Wolfe said the reduction was due to the diversion of sales tax receipts to relief and a drop in sales tax collections.

The relief allocation is from beer, malt and admission taxes and will be allocated to the city of Mansfield and other county sub-divisions on the basis of the number of relief cases they have this month.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

ALL afternoon as the sun shone bright and warm on the western side of the house. I saw the neighbor's cat bask in the warm rays—curled up lazily on a smooth pine board. She appeared so comfortable, purring there, as if all her earthly wants were abundantly supplied. Occasionally she would get up, stretch, gap with wide open mouth, then lie down again.

But when evening came this little tiger became awake and alert and began to prowl about. She started off into the meadow and I felt death would touch that silent trail before many moments. I watched carefully in the pale moonlight, and within a half hour the cat returned, her head held high above the dewy grass, for in her mouth she held a mother lark. Its feet were moving slightly, the body limp.

"Quite early yet for meadow larks to brood," I thought aloud. Yet in that ruthless mouth was held what might have been five little songsters for another spring five insect eaters that would have helped to make the fields more fruitful.

Two weeks ago the children saw a pair of wrens choose a home in a sheltered crotch of a maple tree, close to the porch. They watched the builders at their work until the job was completed. They saw the mother bird sit on the nest more frequently until we knew that hatching time had started. The nest was deep and all we saw at times was a little upturned beak at one side and a sharp angling tail at the other.

But alas—one morning we saw drab feathers scattered on the ground and some drops of blood. The cat again had found its prey. The children wept, but tears will not bring back a life.

If people only knew the harm the most unsuspected cat can do, they would shut them up at night and save the bird life about our farms and city homes. A single cat, if let loose at night, will destroy an average of fifty birds each year.

wanted for murder in Tennessee. The informant said he had followed the suspect who turned on him and threatened his life with a pocketknife.

The man who told the story to detectives four months ago was the murdered man's brother who was here on a visit when he sighted his brother's slayer.

Remy and Oscar Krupp finally spotted the man several weeks ago and for the past few weeks they kept watch over the house where they suspected him of staying.

Two nights ago they picked up the suspect on North Diamond street.

The officers today were waiting word from Hamilton county authorities for extradition papers that would take the suspect back to Chattanooga for trial before the grand jury.

Asks Civic Groups to Support Million Dollar School Program

The proposed $1,000,000 school building program for Mansfield had gained momentum today with the city P. T. A. council and the Association of University Women endorsing the project and pledging their help to bring the plan into realization.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, who proposed the plan as the major unit in his building program, said he would present it to the Chamber of Commerce and service clubs in the city and seek their support.

Meeting in special session at 8 p. m. today, the board of education will confer with architects on preliminary plans for two new junior high school buildings and a shop building at Senior high school.

Building plans must be submitted to the state department of education before an application for a PWA grant for the buildings can be made to federal officials, Miller said.

Recommendations for the buildings were included in the report of a survey of school building conditions in the city submitted last week by Dr. T. C. Holy, of the educational research bureau at Ohio State university.

After accepting the report last week the board took an option on 10 acres of land at Cline avenue and Wood street as the site for one of the proposed junior high schools. The other would be built on the site of the John Simpson junior high school which would be razed. Other improvements under the $1,000,000 program would include modernizing of a number of elementary schools.

ADMITS THEFT

Payteller Accused of Taking $26,000, Losing It on 'Horses.'

CLEVELAND — (FP) — Detectives said today that John F. Sheppard, 39, assistant payteller for the Erie railroad, had confessed that he took $26,000 from the Erie Land and Improvement Co., a subsidiary.

Sheppard, father of an eight-year-old daughter, was quoted by authorities as saying that he lost the money and $3,000 of his own "playing the horses."

SEEK RENEWAL OF GAS RATES

Solons at Informal Session Warn They'll Oppose Any Increase, However.

the present ordinance, while George Berg, councilman-at-large, stood non-committal.

"I will not vote for the present rate ordinance until the gas company gives us assurance that they will accept the rate," Miller said. "I am more in favor of passing a 45-cent ordinance and then fight it out if they won't accept that," he said.

"I'm not making a statement at this time as to what I will vote on," Berg said. "However, I am opposed to any higher rate than the one we are now paying."

Porch said he intended to take the proposal to the gas company, probably tomorrow if he could arrange for a meeting of the committee with W. C. Mead, district manager.

If some definite terms can be arranged at the meeting with the company officials, Porch said he would lay the ordinance, identical to the one now in effect, before council at a special meeting, to be called Friday night by Mayor Hunter.

Porch explained that he will ask for only one reading of the measure in order to give council and the public a chance to become acquainted with the contents of the contract.

BURTON CARRIES RELIEF PLEA TO OHIO TOMORROW

Radio Address to Urge Rural Areas to Back Legislation to Aid Needy.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND— Mayor Harold H. Burton today prepared the final draft of the address he will deliver in a statewide broadcast tomorrow night on the relief crisis in this largest city of Ohio.

The mayor was expected to outline the relief problem here and appeal to the rural areas to support prompt relief legislation when the legislature meets in special session next Monday

Approximately 75,000 in the city are on direct relief. Since the first of the month, when state funds were exhausted, the only ava available funds for direct relief have been provided by city council, $50,000 on one occasion, $70,000 on another. This amounts to an average of approximately one dollar a week per person for food

Relief employes are working without pay on a voluntary basis, and have the assurance they will be paid only when funds become available

Resume Sit-Downs.

Relief clients who staged sit-down demonstrations during the night at two district relief stations returned to their homes this morning to get some sleep, and planned to assemble again tonight to resume their sit-downs

The 25 "sitdowners" in the Doan office, at 11806 Superior avenue, and the 15 at the Lake office, at East 45th street and St Clair avenue, amused themselves during the night by playing bingo and cards Coffee and sandwiches were served at both places.

Burton announced he will attend a meeting of legislative and executive committees of the Ohio League of Municipalities in Columbus tomorrow, but will return in time to deliver his radio address

The broadcast, scheduled from 10 30 p m. to 11 p m. will be heard over WGAR, WTAM and WHK in Cleveland; WADC, Akron, WSPD Toledo; WSAI, Cincinnati, WHIO, Dayton, WKBN, Youngstown, and WBNS, Columbus.

Burton's decision to broadcast his views on relief was prompted by Governor Davey's recent attack on the Cleveland Relief administration and the League of Municipalities.

Mayors and other officials of cities throughout the state which face the same situation now existent here, urged Davey to sall the legislature two months before the call was issued. At a meeting of the league here in March, a tentative relief program was drafted. A final draft of the program, completed later in Columbus, will be presented to the legislature.

Urges Workers On.

With approximately $42,000 yet to be raised, General Chairman Arthur S. Hughes today urged workers to redouble efforts in the next few days He said workers had reported that the spirit encountered over the city on the first day had been most reassuring, and that although there were fewer pledges, most of these represented increases over last year

Workers asked for a full day in which to work without making a report, and it was decided that the next report meeting would be held at First Methodist church Friday noon. Hughes asked workers to clean up as many of their cards as possible by Friday in an effort to bring the total pledged up to $40,000 by Friday noon, which would mean $28,110 to be raised within the next day and a half. The campaign is scheduled to close Saturday night.

Arlin said today that he was confident industry would meet its quota of $25,785, although it might not exceed it, as it has in past years. Last year industry raised $38,000 of the total $58,000 fund

Funds for park improvements would come from tax revenues and would be appropriated for park improvement by council, as is now the case.

Two months ago, Dr. A. D Taylor, Cleveland, nationally known parks authority, visited Mansfield and inspected city parks and recommended "taking parks out of politics" as the first step toward a well-developed park system

The C. of C. board also reiterated its stand in favor of extension of civil service among city employes last night, Williams said, recommending that department heads as well as employes be placed under civil service.

give details of the services.

Mrs. Cable, socially prominent and mother of two children, was fatally wounded by a shotgun charge fired through the sunroom window of the fashionable Cable home on the evening of March 11, 1937, two days before her birthday.

Her husband at the time was in Cleveland, where he was directing construction of a new steel mill.

Bare Illicit Romance.

During the intensive investigation which followed, Cable and Mrs Ludwig were questioned at length but were released. Police developed that the two had been engaging in an illicit romance for seven years, and that Cable had maintained an apartment for her in Akron.

Police said that other prominent men had participated in parties at the apartment, but the names were not disclosed.

A number of persons were questioned in connection with the case, but none could be connected with the crime.

Mrs. Ludwig's suicide Monday was the signal for reopening of the investigation. Cable and his brother told reporters, and later told police, that Mrs. Ludwig had visited them Sunday night, demanding money.

The brother, A. B. Cable, said the demand was refused and Mrs. Ludwig forcibly ejected from his home. Mrs. Ludwig made references to this incident in her final letter, Prosecutor Barthelmeh said.

ONE-THIRD CUT IN 1939 WHEAT ACREAGE SEEN

Soils Conservation Officials Await Federal Allocation; Protests Likely.

Richland county soils conservation officials today were in "the lull between storms" as they awaited federal allocations for the county's 1939 wheat crop which is expected to be reduced by nearly one-third from this year's acreage.

Although protests at the 20 per cent cut in corn acreage continues to reach the county soils program headquarters, most of them have been cleared up, at least temporarily, County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

Arrangements permitting slight increases in the corn acreage of county farmers were worked out in most cases, it was said, after farmers complained that the corn they could plant under federal restrictions would not be enough to supply their needs.

Payments Based On Quota.

Payments under the crop reduction program are made on the basis of an established quota for the county with which participating farmers are expected to comply.

Announcement of the cuts in 1939 wheat acreage, seeded next fall, is expected to bring another storm of protests from farmers who have signed crop agreements. About 1,500 farmers will participate in the program, it is believed.

The federal restrictions cut 16,555 acres from the county land allocated to "cash" crops this year. Corn acreage alone was reduced from 36,000 acres last year to 29,000. Total acreage in "cash" crops permitted under the new program is 88,002 as compared with 104,557 last year.

The program affects corn, wheat, oats, rye, barley and potatoes, usually classified as "cash" crops.

Farmers who reduce their "cash" crop lands are urged to divert them to hay and pasture crops.

GRADS' PROGRAM

June Class to Have Charge of School Assembly Tomorrow.

The June graduating class at Senior high school will present the weekly assembly program tomorrow morning in the high school auditorium.

The program will include tap dancing numbers by Charles Schlegel and William Moffett, a whistling solo by Murray Bullock, selections by The Triplettes, a vocal trio composed by Sue Paste, Kathryn Fighter and Doris Marshall, and the presentation of the one-act play, "Sky Fodder." Members of the play cast are Willis Lewis, Donald Speakman, and Harold Loesch.

As a part of the program, Principal Jesse Beer will present small loving cups to the individual members of the high school basketball team, as their awards for winning the district tournament at Sandusky. Beer also will present a Thespian medal to Lewis who was one of six students chosen for an all-regional play cast at the contest at Granville last Saturday.

John Gano, president of the senior class, will be chairman of the program.

Married? Should Say Not! Actress Says In Law Suit

HOLLYWOOD —(U.P.)— Anita Louise, one of Hollywood's most popular "bachelor girls," demanded $100,000 damages today on grounds that she was identified erroneously as possessing a husband, and that she engaged in a dish and chair throwing contest with him.

The blond actress asked the damages in a suit against Ernest H. White, doing business as The American Bonded Finance Co. She claimed "malicious prosecution." Her contention was based on another suit that White brought last week, which surprised Hollywood by identifying a film scenarist's wife as Anita Louise.

To have been the wife referred to, Miss Louise said that she must have married Scenarist Jack Jaccard when she was a girl of 10 years.

White's suit asked $1,465 back rent from Jaccard, and Jaccard's wife. It claimed that they damaged the furnishings of their rented home by engaging in "arguments, scuffles, and physical encounters.

SYNOPSIS

Clayton Odell, a stranger in Norwood, is taking a sun bath in a canoe on a near-by lake one Saturday afternoon in July when the craft is jolted violently. A second later a yellow bathing cap rises over the side of the canoe and a girl, short of breath, apologizes for the intrusion. "May I hang on here just a minute, please?" she asks. He invites her to climb aboard, which she does with alacrity. She is obviously relieved by this chance to rest after a long swim. In reply to Clayton's genially uttered questions, she says she went out swimming with several girls from the office where she works, and was trying to improve her distance. But her endurance was not equal to her ambitions. The canoe was her only refuge. Clayton and the girl take a liking to each other instantly. After a lively conversation the girl, responding to a question from Clayton, tells him her name is Hiliary Layne, and that she works in the office of the hosiery mills owned by Romulus Wardlaw, whom she describes as "sort of shriveled up and grouchy." Her inexpert knowledge of shorthand had irked him when she once substituted for his secretary.

CHAPTER II

"I'm sorry," Odell offered quickly. "I know what that means. I hope you're not too much alone..." he suggested.

"Oh, no. There's a family of us at home. Besides Mama, there's my sister Muriel. She's quite a little older than I am...teaches school in Norwood. Then I have a brother, Griff. He's only about a year younger than I. He's in the mill."

"That makes me feel better."

"Why?" Hiliary demanded.

"Well, I don't know, exactly. It shouldn't. But when you came bobbing up alongside of the canoe, you had such a sort of worried look. I got a feeling in the back of my head that you were weighted down with a heap of responsibilities."

"It was my legs. I'm perfectly irresponsible and always expect to be."

"Oh, I admit to being a bit irresponsible, myself. But we seem to be approaching port. Is there some particular landing?"

"Yes, please. That second little bathhouse. The girls must have gone home. I must dress and fly."

* * *

Odell brought his craft alongside a single plank that extended over the water on stakes, held it firmly while his passenger scrambled lightly over the rail.

"Thank you very much," she smiled down at him, "Good-by."

"Thank you." He stressed the last work seriously. "You've been very kind to a stranger on your shores. I shall see you again, Hiliary Layne, if I don't weigh anchor sooner than I think."

Her only answer was a fleeting smile over one shoulder as she hurried in the direction of the bathhouse door.

Hiliary made short work of dressing, her mind busily engaged with the experience of the past two hours. As she pulled on her first stocking, she smiled to herself at the memory of what that queery Mr. Odell had said. He had an eye for stockings when they were in action, was what he had said. She straightened out her leg, tilted her brown head to one side and admired the flawleess sheen of her hose.

"Well...?" she murmured.

She never had met any man just like him, though she wasn't sure in what way he was "queer." He had a funny, friendly way of saying things. He must have been joking when he said he would like to get a job in Norwood. That didn't make sense. Although, possibly, she shouldn't have confided her opinions regarding the owner of the Norwood Mills. However, everybody shared them. Mr. Odell would find out all that and more for himself, if he stayed in the vicinity very long. Where could he be visiting?"

She realized with a sudden feeling of discomfort that this strange man had succeeded in finding out almost everything there was to know about her. And he had done it without any seeming effort. At the same time, he had divulged absolutely nothing about himself ...save that he was Clayton Odell. Clayton McMoran Odell. It had been an interesting sound and didn't mean a single solitary thing. It would be queer if he did try to see her again, if he came to the house. Also he would be a trifle difficult to explain. The other girls in the swimming party must have seen her climb into that canoe. She was sure to be greeted with a barrage of questions when she reached the office on Monday morning. If her mother chanced to be on the front porch when Olive Case went by on her way home, the first explanation would not be postponed very long. With a sigh, Hiliary dabbed some powder on her face and started out.

Instead of going up Main street, she chose the less-busy length of Maple; it was nearly as direct and would be without the vanguard of Saturday evening shoppers. As a matter of fact, it proved to be nearly deserted.

When she neared the modest, white-clapboarded home of the Laynes, Hiliary breathed a sigh of relief to discover that her mother's favorite porch chair was vacant.

"Mums!" she called, as she closed the screen door after her. "Where are you?"

"In the kitchen," came a distant, but placid, response.

Mrs. Layne sat in a rocking chair beside an open east window. She was a billowy woman in a white voile dress. The mouth was small like Hiliary's, ridiculously small in the large round face. And she had her daughter's serious gray eyes. Her chair must have been the same warm brown, but now it was threaded generously with white. Her dimpled hands held a magazine which she lowered to her lap when Hiliary appeared in the doorway.

"It seemed cooler in here," she explained. "I thought we'd have a cold supper out of the refrigerator. Griff won't be home."

"Where's Muriel?" her sister wanted to know.

"Why she went to see Mrs. Caldwell this afternoon. Of course she will stay for supper."

"And come home looking like she'd been put through a wringer!" Hiliary exclaimed with sudden vehemence. "What's all this mooning in the past ever going to get her, anyway? When people are dead....they're dead!"

"Larry! How can you!" was Mrs. Layne's mild reproof.

"Sorry, Mums. I shouldn't have said that. But I sull think it's useless and silly. Muriel isn't so old as all that."

"You have to go through these things, my dear, to understand. I can. I think it's rather beautiful. I was reading a story in here that made me think of the poor child."

Hiliary's mouth tightened a trifle at the sight of one of her mother's favorite magazines. First-person heart revelations.

"I'm going to slip into another dress. Then I'll help with supper. Wait until I come down."

"Oh, Larry!"

"Yes?" The girl paused at the door.

"Why, Mrs. Gates was here for a few minutes this afternoon. She had the most surprising news. She said that old Mr. Wardlaw's nephew had come to live with him. He's going into the mill to help him run the business. Had you heard that?"

One of the girl's hands went out and caught at the door knob for support. She shook her head

"What's his name?"

"Wait a minute....it was a funny one. What's that queer noise the Swiss, or somebody, make when they climb mountains?"

"Yodel?" was the distressed guess.

"That's it. The man's name is pretty nearly like that."

"Near enough!"

The door closed with a bang. Hiliary was ascending the stairs with feet that dragged. Each wooden tread gave up a horrid echo.

"Yodel . . . Odell . . . Yodell . . . Odell . . ."

Hiliary Layne's description of her employer, that he was "sort of shriveled up and grouchy," would have held an accurate appeal for almost anyone chancing to see Romulus Wardlaw at his Sunday morning breakfast table. The dining-room was a gloomy apartment, even with the early sunshine streaming through its two east windows. Dull-red paper covered the walls and the heavy old-style furniture was of black walnut.

Romulus was huched down in the depths of a high-backed chair, his elbows resting on its arms, the tips of his thin fingers pressed together at the level of his chin. All of his features shared a lean sharpness, even his dark eyes that peered through a pair of spectacles with unusually small lenses and steel rims. He was breakfasting at his usual hour.

He lifted himself in his chair with a jerky motion when Annie Kime appeared from the kitchen bearing a plate of broiled mackerel in one hand and a dish of steaming potatoes in the other. Long years in the service of Romulus Wardlaw might have transferred their stamp upon Mrs. Kime. She was gaunt, plain of features. Tight-lipped, in appearance at least, and wearing her scanty gray hair pulled back harshly from her face. She deposited her employer's breakfast before him without comment and was turning away when he halted her with an abrupt,

"Annie!"

"Well?"

"Did you tell Mr. Odell that we keep the same hours on Sunday as usual?"

"Yes."

"Have you heard him stirring around yet?"

"I rapped on his door and told him breakfast was most ready. He grunted, was all. I don't see as it makes much difference. Clayton isn't a breakfast eater, seems like. All he wants is coffee and one of those smelly cigarettes."

"Umph." Romulus speared a potato with an irritable gesture. "All right,' he added, by way of dismissal.

After that, he devoted himself to his food, eating largely and with a certain thoroughness. In the act of pouring himself a third cup of coffee, he turned his head sharply at the sound of a step. Clayton Odell stood in the door leading to the hall, smiling sleepily.

"Good morning, Uncle."

"Good morning, sir. A trifle late, aren't you?"

"I'm afraid so," was the good-humored reply. "But this is a grand place to sleep. I'm just getting nicely used to the quiet. If I'm not too late for a cup of coffee, that's all I care for."

Romulus finished pouring his own cup, then deposited the pot on the table at arms length.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does 't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else.

YOUR OIL FREE (UP TO THE FULL MARK) IF I FORGET TO CHECK IT—

When you drive in my station, I'm going to remember to check your oil. We Shell dealers have agreed to this.

If we forget, just say, "Didn't you forget something?"—and we'll bring your crankcase up to the full mark with Golden Shell Oil. FREE!

Why the brainstorm? Well, we know we ought to keep your oil up to the full mark for safety's sake. Besides, we've got an oil that will do the job for your engine like never before. It's made for STOP and GO. About 10 times a day you shut off your engine. Your oil drains down in the crankcase.

When you start up again, engine parts grind together "dry" of lubrication until your oil gets up there. About 3/4 of all the wear on your engine comes in starting.

GOLDEN SHELL OIL LICKS THIS. It starts to flow instantly. And it's plenty tough to take the beating of high speed, too. Remember—there's no finer oil than Golden Shell at any price.

'Live and Help Live.'

MANSFIELD is this week engaged in meeting one of its community obligations—subscribing $53,950 to finance the coming year's activities of a number of agencies that are depended upon to do constructive and essential work in this city.

To carry through this Community Fund campaign it is necessary that several hundred men and women give a considerable amount of time to organization work and to the actual canvass for subscriptions to the fund.

Unless a city can develop and maintain the spirit which prompts a number of its citizens to give time, as well as money, on occasions such as this, it becomes impossible for the community either to thrive or to long justify its continued existence.

Mansfield has been fortunate, in the past and at present, in the quality of its leadership in various civic movements, and has also shown evidence of a community consciousness that brings widespread support to meritorious activities intended to benefit the city as a whole.

Departing from the idea of "equality," except as applied to opportunity, it must be recognized that every city has those who require help and those who are able to give help.

Whatever of heredity or environment may enter into consideration of causes, the fact remains that such agencies as are sustained by the Community Fund must carry on—and that the money necessary must be supplied by those more fortunate persons who are able to earn more than enough to supply their own reasonable needs.

While selfishness may be regarded as among the inherited attributes of much-maligned "human nature" the uplifting influences of advancing civilization and religious teaching have been effective, through a number of generations, in extending a realization of community responsibility to those who are less fortunate—especially to children and young people whose home life does not provide the proper environment for the physical and mental training and the character-building necessary to future good citizenship.

To live well is commendable. To "live and help live" is an expression of humanity at its best—an expression that takes form in contributions to the Community Fund.

Enforcement Essential To Safety.

PUBLIC awareness of the need for safe driving is regarded by the National Safety Council as the probable reason for the decline in traffic fatalities recorded thus far in 1938. The Council gives newspapers of the nation a large measure of credit for creating this "awareness."

Whatever part the newspapers may have played in impressing readers with the need for greater caution in driving automobiles could have had little effect unless it gained sufficient public co-operation to secure more rigid driver's license laws, stricter enforcement of traffic regulations and continued emphasis on the importance of teaching people how to drive before entrusting them with a car.

The News-Journal, for instance, in its efforts to impress motorists with the danger involved in careless, reckless and drunken driving, can extend its influence no further than this seven-county north central Ohio area into which its circulation extends. Nor can it be hoped that the small percentage of motorists who constitute the dangerous minority responsible for practically all of the accidents, will be impressed—or even read—editorials on safety or news articles telling of avoidable highway tragedies.

It has been suggested, and is again emphasized, that the Ohio driver's licensing system is not sufficiently strict to keep licenses out of the hands of irresponsible and incompetent persons and that known habitual drinkers have no difficulty in securing a driver's license.

While some reduction in traffic fatalities may be accomplished by campaigns of education and increased "awareness" on the part of thoughtless drivers, it remains that the dangerous minority—the incompetent, careless, reckless and drunken drivers—must be so severely dealt with by enforcement authorities as to keep them in leash and to provide an example to others who disregard reasonable rules of safe driving.

The crash near Galion Sunday morning, which cost two lives, and the one that occurred west of Mansfield Monday afternoon, with one fatality, must be classed as "avoidable" under any consideration of requirements for safe driving.

Tourist Camp Safety.

ALTHOUGH touring is now a year-round practice, there is still a vacation season during which travel by private automobile and commercial vehicles reaches its greatest volume. That season is at hand, and thousands of American families are getting ready to set forth in the old bus to points near and far.

The development of such travel has brought with it not only fine highways for speed, but innumerable provisions for sheltering the gasoline wanderers at night. Families have set aside house rooms for tourists, farmers have put up tourist cabins in the orchard or along the highway, communities have opened tourist camps. In many places these facilities are strictly regulated, with proper provision for cleanliness, safe water supply, sanitation, and so on. In many others these important matters are neglected and the places become public menaces.

Here is something about which every health department should be actively busy right now. The individual traveler can contribute to the creation of decent conditions everywhere by refusing to stop at any camp or resort until he is certain of its water supplies, drainage and cleanliness. Carefulness in such details will interfere in no way with a happy vacation, but will help the vacationer avoid health perils that would completely spoil his holiday.

According to Jesse Jones, "The depression exists only in the minds of the people"—which would seem to make unemployment merely a mental attitude.

Leave it to the autocrats. When they've killed or banished all their best men, their systems will collapse.

Trend of the times: A politician telling Henry Ford how to run an automobile factory.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

A CHANGE in psychology has occurred in important business circles in the last week or so. There is a strong undercurrent of optimism. Several large refinancing projects are to be announced soon. Various outstanding labor disputes may be settled.

In other words, we may be entering a new cycle.

One of the reasons is this: The government has been talking strongly of taking over complete control of credit—which means banking. Another is this: The success of recent bond and preferred stock issues. Corporations financing at the present time can save millions through cheap money. Still another reason: Even the slightest show of confidence by firms has resulted in immediate upturn in purchasing power by employes.

SOME ITEMS.

One merely has to look over the Wall Street Journal to see the change:

"Resumption expected of utility refundings in next few months. Dealers look for active June and July on market gains, strong investor demand."

"Treasury plans sale of bonds up to billion. Financing revealed by Morgenthau indicates desire to cash in on strong market."

"Housing agency may sell issues in open market...Aid to builders stressed at bank conference."

"Earnings of auto industry in second quarter are likely to show some improvement over the first three months, due to a better profit margin, but unusual expansion in sales and operations is not expected."

NO INFLATION.

The deflationary cycle still is at hand, Washington evidently believes, and even a great deal of "pump-priming" will cause no run-away inflation. Yet, no one can be sure. There is a tremendous reservoir of credit and money which might break the dam.

The government has vast powers. Every government now has. Each has a managed currency. If any group tries to hold back, or bucks the trend, it may find itself under complete government control.

Business, of course, remains bad. If earnings for the second quarter are not so bad as during the first quarter it will be only because corporations had a firmer hold on expenditures. No "real" earnings can possibly make their appearance now until the end of the year.

Many Stories on What Ford Said

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The last time Vice President John N. Garner called at the White House, the visit was followed by the circulation of a multiplicity of conflicting stories concerning a supposedly violent verbal clash between "Texas Jack" and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

No one, except the few who actually were present, has much idea what really did occur, but it generally is accepted that "F. D." and Garner talked about something.

Henry Ford's subsequent entertainment was followed by a perfect epidemic of yarns relative to details of the alleged conversation between the auto magnate, Edsel, the president, Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, and other presidential advisers.

These stories are as confusingly conflicting as the Garner stories were. However, the popular conclusion as to their average purport is different from what it was in the earlier case.

This time the theory is that the president, Ford et al. talked about nothing of any consequence.

* * *

A CHAT, THEN—

There was a chat, of course.

But it appears to have been confined to an exchange of views concerning the weather, probably automotive construction and, perhaps, to expressions of appreciation, by the presidential guests, of the viands served to them at the presidential luncheon.

A bit afterward, indeed, William J. Cameron, chief Ford publicity agent, leaked out a few statements purporting to epitomize certain valuable economic hints that the Detroit billionaire was said to have given to the White House tenant.

White House spokesmen (Eccles, for example), deny, however, that Ford was so off-hand with all that information at the luncheon in question.

The White House's notion is that Ford (or his assistants) belatedly thought up these wisecracks and is undertaking to give the impression that the Detroiter sprung them off-hand on a previously uninformed president.

The White House doesn't exactly like it.

STEWART'S VIEW

Now, few persons, I am sure, will dispute that Henry Ford is a high authority on the subject of automobiles or mass production or industry's (his, anyway) relationships with bankerdom.

But that he is a trained economist possibly is doubtful.

Ford is a positive, intolerant old chap.

And ignorant on many subjects beyond the limits of his personal experience.

I do not dispute that he is a genius, but geniuses notoriously are restricted in their qualifications.

I speak from quite some intimate contacts with Ford on his celebrated peace tour. He knows, almost infinitely, a lot of things that I haven't even a primary acquaintanceship with. Yet, in a broad sense, I'm positive I know (and I wish to speak modestly) a great plenty that he never even dreamed of.

AS STEWART SEES IT

Well, Ford, an "uneducated" mechanic, was chucked up against Franklin D. Roosevelt!

I do not mean to reflect on self-educated mechanics. Gordon and Harvard haven't anything on William Green or John L. Lewis.

But Ford's education never has had any breadth.

Put him up against Franklin D. Roosevelt, and heaven help him!

He is self-educated only as a mechanic.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Must You Know Everything?

I KNOW A MAN who worries because he cannot discover what comes after death. He rejects the common faith of men, but he has found no faith for himself. He wants someone to prove to him that there is life after death and an immortality of some sort for him. He wants exact knowledge of the future that is beyond the grave.

Sometimes he says: "If this is the only life we shall ever know, why should we bother to be decent? Why should we work or plan or try to improve ourselves or the world in which we live? I want somebody to prove to my MIND that there is life after death."

But we need not know everything in order to live decently.

Men work with other mysteries without knowing all their secrets.

Doctors use the violet ray without knowing how it cures. Engineers generate electricity without understanding everything that is to be known about it.

We use the great powers of Niagara and do not know how each drop of that flow falls to the sea and rises again to the heavens and drops again on the mountains, to flow once more to the cliffs of Niagara.

We sail the seas and find strange lands beyond and do not know all the moving currents that flow beneath the surface of the waves.

We love men and women and are ignorant of all that is in their hearts. We love what we see and know of them without troubling about the things that are unknown either to them or to us.

This friend of mine, if he can be content for a while, can live well without solving the greatest of mysteries.

He knows that if he behaves himself he is happier here on earth.

He knows that if he does a good turn for someone, his own heart warms within him.

He knows that good temper pays richer dividends than the wilder passions.

He knows that decency today means peace of mind tomorrow—and why should he not believe that decency in this life will not disturb his dreamless sleep hereafter.

He can walk without qualms along a sidewalk here, without troubling himself as to what is around the corner—and why does my friend demand a periscope into the Great Unknown?

As To Rights.

Fritz Kuhn, deputy fuehrer for America, asserts the German-American bund has "the sole right to guide and lead" German-Americans. He takes in too much territory. There are a great many Americans of German birth or German parentage, we feel sure, who will not concede any such right. Mr. Kuhn evidently has the Nazi notion of right confused with the American conception of it.

It is an inherent right of the American to speak and to choose for himself. If he chooses voluntarily to surrender some of his freedom to an organization, to accept its leadership, to let it become his spokesman, that is his business. But whatever rights may be involved stem from the individual making the choice, not from the organization to which he surrenders. If he wants to hate Jews or "heil" his fellow bund members or delude himself with the notion of superiority of the Nazi political philosophy he is at liberty, but he is under no obligation to do so.

And it might be pointed out, by the way, that those who have accepted American citizenship as a free gift from America are under one obligation, which they solemnly assumed in accepting that gift. That is the obligation to forswear every allegiance to any foreign prince, power, potentate or government.—Omaha World-Herald.

Transfusions Need Cause No Fear.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

A POPULAR magazine recently devoted several pages to a story of the advancements made in what we call blood transfusions. Pictures were presented to show the various stages of the procedure. In consequence of this article, I have received many inquiries about transfusions.

There is really nothing new about this practice. This method of life-saving has been used for many years. But within the past quarter of a century it has been greatly simplified and made safer. Thousands of lives are saved by this means.

When it is successful in results, it builds up the resistance and strength of the patient. It is an aid in battling infections and certain diseases. It is indispensable in the treatment of severe hemorrhage following infection or accident.

In former years a transfusion was regarded almost as a major operation. It was associated with danger. But this is all past. In spite of present day safety, there are still many persons who dread the idea. One reason is the fear of receiving inferior or contaminated blood. Such a possibility is remote because adequate precautions are taken to guard against this danger.

Professional Donor.

A relative may volunteer to give the blood, but in many cases the blood is obtained from professional donors. These persons are under constant supervision, reporting for periodic check ups on health.

Only certain forms or types of blood are used. Since there are four different groups it is necessary to find exactly the right type to "match" the blood of the patient. This is quickly and accurately determined by certain tests.

No one should deprive himself of this life-saving and health-building procedure. It is amazing to see the immediate and beneficial results of the transfusions. Prior to the transfusion the patient appears pale, restless and weak. The skin is almost yellowish in color and the lips are colorless.

Almost immediately after the injection of blood there is a marked change in the appearance. The lips assume a reddish color and the cheeks no longer are pale and anemic looking.

Listen, World!

"The Psychology of Scarcity."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DEPRESSIONS" . . . "Recessions" . . . What makes them?

Economic shortage? . . . Capitalistic greed? . . . Sociological changes? You've heard all these reasons—and plenty more. But here comes Copley Clark, of New York City, with an entirely different answer—

"WE WISH THEM ON OURSELVES!" Says C. C.

"There is no real lack of any needful thing in our country, but we have dwelt and acted so long on the idea of scarcity, that the belief has become a reality.

"'AS A MAN THINKETH IN HIS HEART, SO IS HE.'

"In March, 1933, when the banks closed and fear was rampant throughout our nation, the only REAL lack was that which existed in the minds of the people. Then, as now, the American people had just as great natural resources, efficient machinery, food, shelter and money. Yet, of a sudden, everything came to a standstill. Why? BECAUSE, WE THE PEOPLE HAD LOST FAITH IN OURSELVES—IN OUR OWN RESOURCES!

"Since 1933, stupendous efforts have been made on all sides to bring about a greater feeling of security. Yet, in spite of everything, we are still steeped, both as individuals and a nation, in FEAR. WE HAVE CREATED A PSYCHOLOGY OF SCARCITY IN THE MIDST OF THE GREATEST ABUNDANCE THAT HAS EXISTED SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN.

"Our present problems are literally the result of continuous sickly thinking . . . of lack of faith . . . of doubt and fear. Permanent prosperity can never come back to America until we believe in ourselves, our country and our courage again."

Copley Clark,
149 West 12th St.,
New York City.

Sane, strong stuff, that letter—and, personally, I agree with it 100 per cent. But perhaps you don't think that nations and individuals make their own luck? All right—let's look over the evidence.

Admitted that America's going through tough times. But this isn't the first time America ever saw tough times. In our past, we faced infinitely greater hardships, dangers and scarcities than we face today. As Pilgrims—persecuted, driven out from the Old World, landing homeless and penniless in an unmapped, savage land—we knew them. As Revolutionists, staking our pitiful resources against the massed malice of a madman, we knew them again. And again, as Pioneers on the Covered Wagon Trail, we beat a trail to the sunset bordered with our own skulls, cemented with our own blood. Over and over, we Americans have faced—THE WORKS! And always we have licked them. Why?

BECAUSE WE BELIEVED WE COULD!

We had no wealth, no tools, no scientific knowledge or organized industry to help us win those other fights. And, above all, WE HAD NO RELIEF. BUT WE HAD FAITH . . . IN OURSELVES . . . IN OUR COUNTRY . . . IN OUR VISION . . . IN OUR GOD. AND BY THAT FAITH WE WON!

For 150 years, without Federal Aid, these United States licked their troubles and made the grade. Today—with every conceivable aid and much which should never have been conceived—we're failing. Why?

BECAUSE WE'VE LOST THAT FAITH IN OURSELVES, OUR COUNTRY, OUR VISION AND OUR GOD. WE'VE BECOME SPOON-FED SOFTIES. WHERE ONCE WE THOUGHT VICTORY, WE NOW THINK DEFEAT. AND GET IT!

"As a man thinks, so is he—"

Yes—but what has turned a Gogettum nation into a peevish bunch of Gimmes?

Two factors, mainly—MACHINES and ALIEN PROPAGANDA. The machines have spoiled us . . . relieved us of the necessity for thinking or working for ourselves. Where Grandpa used his two fists, proudly and efficiently, we wait for a Push-Button . . . unable ourselves to function independently. And while we wait . . . growing softer and lazier by the minute . . . the Foreign Propagandist gets in his licks. Tells us we're abused . . . robbed and duped by the System . . . SELLS US A SWELL DOSE OF THE SNIVELS.

What we need is not RELIEF but BELIEF . . . the sort of BELIEF in ourselves, our country, our Constitution and our God which once made us the most progressive, prosperous and powerful nation on earth—and can do it again!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sally Rand, who is fairly burning to be a real legitimate stage actress, always has been an ambitious miss. When she was 15, and apprentice to a milliner out Missouri way, Sally craved the better things of life and turned to invention as the quickest means of lifting one by one's bootstraps. Only what Sally invented was not a bootstrap; it was a brassiere.

"I had observed," says Miss Rand, "that the fashion in brassieres emphasized the boyish figure. The brassiere was no more than a straight band. So I started experimenting with squares and triangles of cloth and piecing these together made a brassiere that was form-fitting and closely resembled those of today.

"My name was Billy Beck then, so we called it 'Billy Beck's Beautiful Brassiere.' It made me a few dollars, but not many. I didn't have any capital."

AND it has been acquiring the needed capital that has occupied the lady of the fans and bubbles ever since.

Only now the capital is needed to promote Sally herself as an actress. Her schedule of summer stock appearances reads like a list of the New England resorts. She'll start with a role in "They Knew What They Wanted" at Baltimore, which isn't summer stock or New England either, but a spring play festival in Maryland's dramatic oasis. After that will be appearances at Dennis, on Cape Cod; Mt. Kisco, N. Y., Westport, Conn., Ogunquit, Me., and several others I can't recall.

Playing summer stock costs Sally plenty. Not only does she have to maintain her retinue, consisting of a secretary, a chauffeur, a dresser . . . but she has to turn down all offers that conflict with playing dates and an advance week of rehearsals.

Sally's goal is a Broadway play next winter and what she says about it is: "Not only do I want to appear on Broadway, but I'm going to . . . and that's that."

MIDTOWN now has two popcorn stands, Grand Central and West 42nd street. For years the only one I knew of was in the underground passageway off Lexington avenue.

The largest network of foreign language radio stations in America is bossed by a girl—Hyla Kizales, a Barnard college graduate.

Street Scene: Charles Atlas, the man with the perfect physique, sipping a glass of milk in Dempsey's restaurant. Atlas is the man discovered by Bernarr Macfadden, and his picture featured all the "grow muscle" ads which for years flooded the magazines.

The nicest pet shop window in town is near Columbus circle . . . At least, for the moment it is certainly the most appealing . . . For in it are seven little black spaniel puppies, with ears like long satin purses and eyes like sloes.

* * *

There's enough dynamite within a pebble toss of Broadway to blow half Manhattan to smithereens. It's stored in armoured (and padded) cells thrown up along Sixth avenue where the new subway is a-building.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Pot Luck."

"It is my wish," said good-hearted Henry IV, when, near the close of the Sixteenth Century, he became King of France, "that every peasant may have meat for dinner every day of the week, and a fowl in his pot every Sunday."

Had Henry IV's ambition been fulfilled, it would have been rare pot luck indeed for his subjects who customarily swung their well-blackened, boiling soup container over the coals in the center of the fireplace, threw into it almost anything edible that came along, and at meal times fished for themselves, hoping for the best—and bequeathing to us moderns a phrase redolent and quite European.

Alas, within a few years, he wrote sadly:

"I have hardly a horse on which I could fight, my doublets have holes at the elbows and my pot is often empty."

Henry IV had tried his best, but he had no pot luck.

Her Husband Said.

I turn into the avenue
Where our small house is set,
And as I see it off afar
My worries I forget.

I vision you, our morning kiss
That sent me on my way
A few short hours ago, and now,
Now, at the close of day

I hasten; once again I wish
Assurance of your lips
That love is ours, in this the best
Of all companionships.

LIBRARY SERVES RURAL SECTIONS IN BOOKMOBILE

Takes Books to Those Who Wouldn't Have Access to Institution Otherwise.

If there are people living in Richland county who do not have access to public library service, it isn't the fault of the Mansfield Public library bookmobile.

For this library on wheels, like Mohamet and his mountain, goes to the people who can't come to the library. The big enclosed truck, loaded with books and "manned" by members of the library staff, is a familiar sight on Richland county roads.

It is estimated that there are still more than a million and a half persons in Ohio who do not have access to library service, but Richland county is in the higher brackets in the number of persons reached.

The bookmobile of the Public library has been in operation here since 1932, and has gradually extended its services, so that with the branch stations and the truck, practically every community and school in the county is reached.

6 Branches In County.

There are permanent branches of the Mansfield library in Bellville and Plymouth, with paid librarians, and four stations that are maintained through volunteer service. In Pavonia and Olivesburg the stations are in private homes, while at Shiloh, Shafer's grocery serves as the library, and at Butler, the Boone Hardware store performs the same service.

One of the major services performed by these modern and compact libraries on wheels is contact with county and rural schools. It carries new books every week to Lucas, Ontario and Lexington schools, parking near the building. Students are let out in classes to come to the bookmobile for selections. There is the same service as though they were at the main library here.

Miss Margaret Draper, children's librarian, and Miss Ruth Leighley, reference librarian, drive the truck and service the schools and branch stations. Besides delivering books at these county stations, the bookmobile carries a new stock once a month to 92 teachers in city schools and to 64 other teachers three times a year.

Other stations in the city that are serviced by the bookmobile are Senior High, John Simpson and Hedges Junior High schools. General hospital, and Fire Station No. 3.

During the summer when schools are closed the bookmobile is transferred to service among the city playgrounds.

TREE GROWS ROSES

COLLEGE CITY, Cal.—(U.P.)—William Hawk, grafting expert and known as the "Luther Burbank of College City" has successfully grafted a red rose bush on an apple tree. The rose graft is now in full bloom.

As Library on Wheels Calls at Ontario

The bookmobile of the Mansfield Public library is shown above as it stops at the Ontario Community school on its weekly rounds of the county. Among the first to flock to the "library on wheels" are the small folks. From left to right the children are: Kent Roger, Richard Hunt, Bobby Chilcote, Barbara Odenkirk, Doris Hergatt, Homer Fox, Lita Bemiller, Betty Taylor, Geraldine Rice, Patsy Jackson (on the running board), and Noel Payton. Behind the children at the left is Miss Ruth Leighley, reference librarian, while Miss Margaret Draper, children's librarian, is at the right.

SNAKE 'ANGLING' LATEST TEXAS SPORT; RATTLERS ARE SNARED

MATADOR, Tex. — (U.P.) — Cowboys and town dwellers alike are getting new thrills this spring from a dangerous new sport of the rocky ranch country—snake angling.

The idea circulated northward from the Rio Grande ranchers, past Breckenridge, in Central West Texas, where a "snake hunt" is an annual outing for many citizens. The rugged brush country of the "Cap Rock" plateau of the high plains furnishes a sport usually not found in snake hunting.

Rattlesnakes are the prey and the "rods" are 4-foot lengths of pipe encircling a stout wire that is fashioned into a loop at the bottom end. The "angler" carries the rod, and when he meets a rattler, the wire loop is slipped over the snake's head. A quick jerk on the other end of the wire, and the rattler is killed—either decapitated or with a broken back.

Whereas the Breckenridge snake hunters customarily go out before the reptiles' winter hibernation is over, the Matador "anglers" find their thrills when the snakes start their spring "run"—the first sallies from their winter homes. The snakes there are extra-vicious, surly and hungry.

The snake anglers find their prey sunnnig on the rocks or drowsing in shady crevices. Ofttimes, the anglers use mirrors to reflect sunlight into the shady hiding place.

A catch of 100 is not unusual for a single all-day party.

A great deal of skill is necessary to approach the furious rattlers and snare them with the 4-foot wire. Experienced hunters prefer to catch the larger snakes because they lack the agility and fight of the younger ones.

BOOKS PUT ON SLIDES

MALTA, Mont.—(U.P.)—The huge, 8-foot books in the treasurer's office of Phillips county will dance a jig instead of the bookkeeper. The big books, weighing from 150 to 300 pounds will be placed on sliding tables that will roll about to permit the bookkeeper to do all his work without leaving his seat.

HELD FOR JURY

Elyria Man Gives Himself Up On Check Charge, Waives Hearing.

Waiving preliminary examination when arraigned in municipal court yesterday on a charge of issuing a check with insufficient funds, John Reidy, 30, of Elyria, was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond. Unable to furnish bond, Reidy was taken to county jail.

Reidy was arrested by Police Chief Meade K. Bates when he walked into headquarters and gave himself up. Bates said the man had issued a check for $100 to Nick Miller, rear of 233 Park avenue east, early last month, on a California bank and that the check had been returned marked "insufficient funds."

SESSION IN JUNE

Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, and Atty. John F. Kramer, both members of the board of directors of Wittenberg college, Springfield, will attend the spring meeting of the board, June 2 and 3 at the college.

The meeting will precede the 93rd annual commencement week activities at the college. Dr. Alvin E. Bell of Toledo, formerly of Mansfield, is president of the board.

SUSPENDS THREE

Sheriff Acts as Prisoners Fight In Cleveland Jail.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell has announced three deputies assigned to the fifth floor of county jail had been suspended because of negligence.

The men suspended were Michael Carey, Carl Ebersole and Harry Lance. O'Donnell said that they were suspended because they "didn't take steps" to prevent a fight among prisoners.

O'Donnell admitted the fight might have been caused by an argument over a projected jail break, as saw blades had been found by deputies in a bunch of bananas intended for prisoners in the cell block just before the trouble started.

One of the prisoners involved was Bruno Kreminiski, an Ohio penitentiary convict held in the jail here.

FEARS OF CHILD FOUND ACQUIRED

Fright From Babyhood Days Usually Most Dangerous, Psychologist Says.

BATON ROUGE, La.—(U.P.)—The child has only three or four natural fears, and those which are acquired during babyhood are usually the most dangerous and the result of improper care and attention.

That is the belief of Dr. Paul C. Young, professor of psychology at Louisiana State University. Dr. Young picked up a few fears when a child, he said, and knows whereof he spoke.

"Many parents play on the fears of their children in order to make them obey, to keep them from interfering, to keep them down," Dr. Young said, "only to find later that they are bringing up a shy, timid, stay-at-home and dream creature. He is afraid of his own shadow, afraid that he will lose his job, afraid to speak to those he meets, afraid that those he meets might speak to him, and more afraid still that they won't speak to him.

"By careful investigation," Dr. Young continued, "it has been found that the child has only three or four natural fears. The rest are acquired. He screams or cringes with fear, first, if he is all but allowed to fall; second, if a loud sound is made near him; third, if some sudden, intense, or long continued pain afflicts him; fourth, if he is handled too roughly."

All other fears, Dr. Young warned, are learned. Parents who scare their children with bogeyman stories to make them be quiet, or put them in closets, or otherwise punish them for misbehavior are instilling dangerous fears in the child, he said.
